This is a practical guidebook for conducting field research on cultural issues. The first third of the book describes how one constructs a research design; the rest of the book describes different methods that the author used during his own NSF sponsored cross cultural research on romantic love in Russia, Lithuania and the US. The methods described are freelist, pile or Q sorts, questionnaires, consensus analysis, interviews, process analysis and participant observation. Participant observation is intentionally left to the end to emphasize that it is the most difficult of all methods and also to show that participant observation is a more powerful tool when preceded by more structured and systematic methods of data collection. The strengths and weaknesses of these methods are discussed as are the pitfalls that occur when a research design is implemented in the field. The book is useful for anyone who is preparing to conduct fieldwork on socio cultural issues.
