I Technical Specifications Performance Analysis The 2003 Dodge Caravan typically offered a range of engine options primarily focusing on V6 configurations Lets assume for the purpose of this analysis two primary engine options were available a 33L and a 38L V6 The following table summarizes their key specifications assuming data derived from the hypothetical comprehensive manual

Table 1 2003 Dodge Caravan Engine Specifications Note The inclusion of a manual transmission in a 2003 Caravan is highly unlikely hence the focus on automatic transmissions The MPG figures are estimations based on similar vehicles of that era A genuine manual would substantially alter performance and fuel economy figures

Visual Representation A bar chart comparing horsepower and torque for both engines would visually represent the performance difference This chart would clearly show the advantage of the 38L engine in both power and torque suggesting better towing capacity and acceleration Unfortunately I cannot create visual representations here Imagine a bar chart with engine type on the xaxis and horsepowertorque on the yaxis showing higher bars for 2 the 38L engine
