jesus parables they are widely known or at least often referenced but does that mean they are well understood having slipped into the lingua franca of our day we could be missing some of what he was communicating if familiarity breeds contempt perhaps our sense that we know these stories insulates us from what jesus was saying about life with god if jesus intended his parables to be much more than helpful illustrations or memorable word pictures we might need to hear them in a fresh way we could be overlooking what is essential if we read his parables simply as clever stories like a chef who seasons the meal in such a way that the distinctive flavors of each element is enhanced brian invites the reader into an invigorating and fresh taste of what jesus says in his parables reading each parable attentive to jesus own words and the context in which these stories are found you ll hear the voice of the savior in renewed ways no longer will you think of his parables as clever stories but you ll find them to be life giving words from jesus reading and textual interpretation are ordinary human activities performed inside as well as outside academia but precisely how they function as unique sources of knowledge is not well understood in this book rené van woudenberg explores the nature of reading and how it is distinct from perception and attending to testimony which are two widely acknowledged knowledge sources after distinguishing seven accounts of interpretation van woudenberg discusses the question of whether all reading inevitably involves interpretation and shows that although reading and interpretation often go together they are distinct activities he goes on to argue that both reading and interpretation can be paths to realistically conceived truth and explains the conditions under which we are justified in believing that they do indeed lead us to the truth along the way he offers clear and novel analyses of reading meaning interpretation and interpretative knowledge justification as ignorance offers an original account of epistemic justification as both non factive and luminous vindicating core internalist intuitions without construing justification as an internal condition knowable by reflection alone sven rosenkranz conceives of justification in its doxastic and propositional varieties as a kind of epistemic possibility of knowing and of being in a position to know his account contrasts with recent alternative views that characterize justification in terms of the metaphysical possibility of knowing instead he develops a suitable non normal multi modal epistemic logic for knowledge and being in a position to know that respects the finding that these notions create hyperintensional contexts he also defends his conception of justification against well known anti luminosity arguments shows that the account allows for fruitful applications and principled solutions to the lottery and preface paradoxes and provides a metaphysics of justification and its varying degrees of strength that is compatible with core assumptions of the knowledge first approach and disjunctivist conceptions of mental states
