rwanda and burundi are strikingly similar countries that underwent democratization in the early 1990s in both resistance to democratic reforms led to coups d état and presidential assassinations a conundrum arises in terms of what transpires next in rwanda total genocide was perpetrated by extremist hutu actors including government officials upon the country s tutsi and politically moderate hutu populations in burundi the coup d état failed and instead ushered in a lengthy period of civil war this divergence in outcome is puzzling given the similarity of these two countries and it is not adequately explained by studies that address collective violence in each this book utilizes an integrative approach that facilitates the formation of an explanation that more fully accounts for variation in the type of collective violence that occurred in rwanda and burundi showing that political actors during periods of major institutional change do not all respond to or perceive reform in the exact same manner or in a necessarily rational manner this book makes an important contribution to the literature on ethnic conflict collective violence and democratization in africa
