this thesis is based on the first data from the large hadron collider lhc at cern its theme can be described as the classical rutherford scattering experiment adapted to the lhc measurement of scattering angles to search for new physics and substructure at the lhc colliding quarks and gluons exit the proton collisions as collimated particle showers or jets the thesis presents studies of the scattering angles of these jets it includes a phenomenological study at the lhc design energy of 14 tev where a model of so called large extra dimensions is used as a benchmark process for the sensitivity to new physics the experimental result is the first measurement made in 2010 by atlas operating at the lhc start up energy of 7 tev the result is compatible with the standard model and demonstrates how well the physics and the apparatus are understood the first data is a tiny fraction of what will be accumulated in the coming years and this study has set the stage for performing these measurements with confidence as the lhc accumulates luminosity and increases its energy thereby probing smaller length scales

this thesis describes searches for new particles predicted by the super symmetry susy theory a theory extending beyond the current standard model of particle physics using the atlas detector at the cern large hadron collider the thesis focuses on searches for stop and sbottom squarks the susy partners of the top and bottom quarks which are expected to be lighter than the partners of the first and second generation quarks and therefore good candidates for the first evidence of susy it describes novel techniques for estimating and rejecting the standard model backgrounds to searches for these particles it also includes an independent analysis seeking to constrain the standard model  $t\bar{t}Z$  background process which also represents the first atlas search for this rare process at the lhc the stop squark analysis described with substantial leading contributions from the author is the first search for these particles at the lhc to use the jets plus missing transverse energy plus 0 lepton signature and provides the world's best limits on the stop mass for light neutralino lsps all in all the thesis describes three different world leading analyses in both standard model and susy physics and therefore represents a major contribution to the field
