how much heavier was thackeray s brain than walt whitman s which novels do american soldiers read when did cigarettes start making an appearance in english literature and while we re about it who wrote the first western is there any link between asthma and literary genius and what really happened on dorothea s wedding night in middlemarch in curiosities of literature john sutherland contemplates the full import of questions such as these and attempts a few answers in a series of essays that are both witty and eclectic his approach is also unashamedly discursive an account of the fast working mickey spillane for example leads to a consideration of the substances both legal and illegal that authors have employed to boost their creative energies an essay on good and bad handwriting points out in passing that thackeray could write the lord s prayer on the back of a stamp as for mary shelley a brief recital of the circumstances in which she wrote frankenstein stops off to consider what impact the miserable summer weather of 1816 had on the future path of english literature of course it is debatable whether knowledge of these arcane topics adds to the wisdom of nations but it does highlight the random pleasures to be found in reading literature and reading about it as john sutherland rightly asks why else read with a series of succinct pithy essays renowned literary critic john sutherland strips away all pretension and provides concise definitions and clear examples of the 50 most important terms and concepts that all book lovers should know a much loved author brings the world of literature alive for all ages this little history takes on a very big subject the glorious span of literature from greek myth to graphic novels from the epic of gilgamesh to harry potter john sutherland is perfectly suited to the task he has researched taught and written on virtually every area of literature and his infectious passion for books and reading has defined his own life now he guides young readers and the grown ups in their lives on an entertaining journey through the wardrobe to a greater awareness of how literature from across the world can transport us and help us to make sense of what it means to be human sutherland introduces great classics in his own irresistible way enlivening his offerings with humor as well as learning beowulf shakespeare don quixote the romantics dickens moby dick the waste land woolf 1984 and dozens of others he adds to these a less expected personal selection of authors and works including literature usually considered well below serious attention from the rude jests of anglo saxon runes to the da vinci code with masterful digressions into various themes censorship narrative tricks self publishing taste creativity and madness sutherland demonstrates the full depth and intrigue of reading for younger readers he offers a proper introduction to literature promising to interest as much as instruct for more experienced readers he promises just the same this is a book about books novels in particular how they work what they are about what makes them good or bad and how to talk about them to kindred spirits people of all ages classes and nationalities read novels for much the same variety of reasons to escape pain or danger to discover the past or experience the future to look into the intimate details of other people s lives since classical times readers have been sharing their experiences of literature today they often do so in the context of a book group using a variety of exemplary texts how to read a novel forms a series of intelligent conversations supplying readers with new questions to ask about what they read and the means and confidence to ask those questions the word reading as we customarily use it is a very blunt instrument we assume it s rather like riding a bicycle you can do it you re literate or you can t you re illiterate in fact reading well is almost as difficult as writing well this is a kind of guidebook on how to do it
