meeting these needs while sustaining peace requires more than simply having governmental structures in place it requires good governance natural resources are essential to sustaining people and peace in post conflict countries but governance failures often jeopardize such efforts this book examines the theory practice and often surprising realities of post conflict governance natural resource management and peacebuilding in fifty conflict affected countries and territories it includes thirty nine chapters written by more than seventy researchers diplomats military personnel and practitioners from governmental intergovernmental and nongovernmental organizations the book highlights the mutually reinforcing relationship between natural resource management and good governance natural resource management is crucial to rebuilding governance and the rule of law combating corruption improving transparency and accountability engaging disenfranchised populations and building confidence after conflict at the same time good governance is essential for ensuring that natural resource management can meet immediate needs for post conflict stability and development while simultaneously laying the foundation for a sustainable peace drawing on analyses of the close relationship between governance and natural resource management the book explores lessons from past conflicts and ongoing reconstruction efforts illustrates how those lessons may be applied to the formulation and implementation of more effective governance initiatives and presents an emerging theoretical and practical framework for policy makers researchers practitioners and students governance natural resources and post conflict peacebuilding is part of a global initiative to identify and analyze lessons in post conflict peacebuilding and natural resource management the project has generated six books of case studies and analyses with contributions from practitioners policy makers and researchers other books in this series address high value resources land water livelihoods and assessing and restoring natural resources this book contains ten chapters and constitutes an attempt to discuss some of the key areas of governance in the country this text posits three main arguments first that promoting democratic good governance in sierra leone is an imperative that should be embarked upon by any government if it is to ensure socioeconomic and political development on the one hand and peace and security on the other second that the process of promoting democratic good governance will not be an easy task and this is why any government should strive to be vigilant and extricate the country from dependence the fact remains that a successful good governance environment in sierra leone will depend on economic development third that governance should be not only enhanced through ensuring adequate capacity but also constantly monitored and it should be a permanent phenomenon the need to strengthen links between and among the government civil society and the private sector cannot be overemphasized this is necessary to ensure the dynamism that should characterize a good governance environment this environment should include a new sierra leonean psyche that of the interests of the state first anchored in attitudinal and behavioral change in this book the author also attempts to determine how far sierra leone has gone in its practice of democratic good governance and the challenges it is facing in trying to do so he also makes recommendations on how these challenges could be surmounted this book explores the challenges of the governance and public policy in the midst and after conflicts revolutions and civil wars in the middle east and africa as anywhere else the task of rebuilding peace and institutionalizing stability in countries experiencing a conflict or just emerging from it is daunting uncertain and context specific yet focusing on the middle east and africa is of particular relevance as these two regions feature the highest numbers of inter and intra state conflicts on the one hand and the central states are more often contested than in the rest of world regions the first half of the book proposes different cases addressing the fundamental challenge of inclusion and cohesion as well as the recurring issue of exclusion in conflict affected situations with four different cultural and institutional settings the second half of the book offers more theoretical insights and proposed pathways to develop more inclusive and peaceful governance settings in africa the middle east and beyond this edited book has been designed to be a helpful contribution to the analysis of conflict and post conflict governance and peacebuilding to do so it deploys different lenses of social sciences especially public policy and international relations but also benefits from social psychology political anthropology and other disciplines that enable a more comprehensive understanding of the multifaceted complex and dynamic issues at play norms and indicators between experts public servants donors and communities in post conflict settings the author also shares illuminating case studies by way of his considerable wealth of experience leading reconstructive efforts in afghanistan and cambodia post conflict peacebuilding has become a primary concern of international politics indeed the un reform agenda including the creation of a peacebuilding commission makes clear that more must be done to prevent societies from falling back into violent struggle building up domestic capacity to provide security in an accountable manner plays a crucial role in this context applying a security governance perspective this volume examines a number of key issues that must be addressed by both post conflict societies and the international community as they confront the task of rebuilding after armed conflict this includes security sector reform sssr disarmament demobilization and reintegration ddr rule of law and transitional justice alan bryden is deputy head of research at the geneva centre for the democratic control of armed forces switzerland heiner hnggi is assistant director and head of research at the geneva centre for the democratic control of armed forces the subject of local government and post conflict reconstruction sits at the intersection of several interrelated research areas notably conflict peacebuilding governance and political economy this volume addresses a gap in the academic literature whilst decentralisation is frequently included in peace agreements the actual scope and role of local government is far less frequently discussed this gap remains despite a considerable literature on local government in developing countries more generally particularly with regard to decentralisation but also despite a considerable and growing literature on post conflict reconstruction this volume provides a mixture of case study cross case studies practitioner reflection and conceptual material on the function of local government in the context of decentralisation in post conflict countries from both academics and policy makers this collection of in depth single and multi country case study analysis is complemented by practitioner reflections and framed within the 2030 agenda building on the new urban agenda and particularly the sustainable development goal 16 to promote peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development provide access to justice for all and build effective accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels the chapters in this book were originally published in the online journal third world thematics governance reconstruction so that communities emerging from violent conflict can reach their potential with special reference to peace building in the post 2006 political scenario in nepal transcript of papers presented in seminars in the past two decades the international community has shown an increased proclivity to engage in programmes of post conflict reconstruction in the aftermath of wars during the same period increased globalisation has meant that multinational companies have grown greatly in size and influence and have begun to challenge existing notions of governance at a global level here peter davis explores the reconstruction processes that have taken place in azerbaijan bosnia and rwanda based on extensive field work as well as existing literature this book plots the recovery of these countries from conflict and examines in detail the role that international companies have played in that process the book also explores how companies impacts on reconstruction are governed both by the companies themselves and by the host government and international agencies managing the rebuilding process this dissertation investigates how post conflict countries manage the reconstruction process to simultaneously consolidate political support and minimize new insurgencies focusing on subnational variation in the case of uganda since 1986 i show how and when the central government has manipulated the provision of public goods i e electricity security i e police infrastructure and development i e foreign aid projects to achieve its twin political objectives of improving political support and minimizing violent threats to its rule in making these distributive choices i argue that incumbent rulers face what i call a victor s dilemma in which they often must choose between allocating state resources to improve their short term electoral interests or to invest in longer term state building projects that improve the state s capacity when armed and electoral opposition are concentrated in different geographic constituencies resource constrained governments will prioritize resource allocation disproportionately towards those areas considered a larger threat to their grip on power on the whole i demonstrate that uganda s allocation of essential state related services and activities has been motivated largely by short term interests to maintain political control rather than long term state building efforts of reconstruction as a conflict ends and the parties begin working towards a durable peace practitioners and peacebuilders are faced with the possibilities and challenges of building new or reformed political security judicial social and economic structures this handbook analyzes these elements of post conflict state building through the lens of international law which provides a framework through which the authors contextualize and examine the many facets of state building in relation to the legal norms processes and procedures that guide such efforts across the globe the volume aims to provide not only an introduction to and explanation of prominent topics in state building but also a perceptive analysis that augments ongoing conversations among researchers lawyers and advocates engaged in the field the research handbook on post conflict state building provides keen insights for faculty graduate and undergraduate students in programs related to peace and conflict governance and international justice and law practitioners such as united nations staff government officials international institution and think tanks engaged in post conflict state building will glean important lessons and guidance from the

have arab uprisings opened space for deeper grassroots driven decentralization reforms in the region what are the optimum designs sequencing and models of decentralization for countries in political transition while political discourse in the region uniformly emphasizes reforming state institutions decentralization reform agendas have unfolded along contrasting trajectories across arab transition countries both contextual and historical dynamics seem to shape visions for the orientation and pace of decentralization reforms as well as the empirical feasibility of shifting power relations among the various tiers of state administration drawing on findings from field research and recent analyses this study argues that uprisings have created stronger momentum for revisiting the question of decentralization reforms in libya and yemen where the very nature of the state is being redefined compared to the cases of egypt and tunisia where all stakeholders agree on preserving the unitary state model in the latter cases while there is evidence that new advocacy movements focused on reforming local government structures have emerged they have thus far remained elite led grassroots activism at local community levels has served to empower new actors who in some cases have been successful at extracting concessions from local authorities these efforts however predominantly focus on improving access to public services within the existing context of centralized state structures and seem often to have failed to gain the trust of local community members as potential partners in local governance building on focus group discussions among working class residents in greater cairo and on interviews with egyptian political elites the study highlights an emerging critical gap between youth expectations and on the other hand the envisioned plans of the political elite while youth are more likely to demand deeper reforms across all three dimensions of decentralization administrative fiscal and political political elites disagree not only on which particular dimension s of reforms should be implemented but also on the urgency of decentralization during early phases of political transformation the latter s wide range of views reflect deep concerns over political capture by traditional elites weakness of political parties as well as potentially detrimental impacts of reforms on state capacity and the nation state s territorial integrity the study concludes by drawing lessons from france s successful contract based record of decentralization and presents policy recommendations for countries that have emerged from the arab uprisings with relatively strong centralized state structures and cohesive national identities publisher s description
