this collection of readings aims to provide readers with a critical perspective on the unfolding educational policies of south africa and provides a platform for participating in future educational debates

this book comprises eight essays that consider the politics and polemics of monuments in africa in the wake of the rhodesmustfall movement in 2015 the removal of the rhodes statue from uct main campus is the pivot on which the discussion of monuments as heritage in south africa turns it raised a number of questions about the implementation of heritage policy and the unequal deployment of memorials in the south african and other postcolonial landscapes the essays in this volume are written by authors coming from different backgrounds and different disciplines they address different aspects of this event and its aftermath offering some intensive critique of existing monuments analysing the successes of new initiatives meditating on the visual resonances of all monuments and attempting to map ways of moving forward school improvement has become a dominant feature of educational reform in many countries the pressure upon schools to improve performance has resulted in a wide range of improvement programmes and initiatives which can provide both inspiration and advice to everyone involved in school improvement this book draws together the most effective school improvement projects from around the world in one comprehensive text including detailed comparative analysis of a wide variety of initiatives drawing on examples from the uk the usa canada south africa and australia this book gives both an international snapshot and a coherent synthesis of initiatives that have given achievable results this work looks at the fate of black african immigrants in south africa and the xenophobic attacks against them which have taken place in many parts of the country through the years since the end of apartheid the xenophobic violence has been perpetrated by black south africans prompting some people to describe this phenomenon as the new apartheid by blacks against other blacks after the end of white minority rule besides the violence directed against them black african immigrants also face hostility in general from a significant number of south africans including educated ones and members of the middle class as well as some leaders who encourage them to go home in 2008 black african immigrants were attacked in different parts of the country in the worst form of violence since the end of apartheid tens of thousands were left homeless and just as many were forced to flee south africa and return to their home countries the author looks at the factors behind the violence and why many africans are forced to flee their home countries in search of greener pastures elsewhere bad african leadership is one of the main factors he also argues that south africa can not solve the problems of other african countries including unemployment and should not be expected to the attacks against the immigrants have resulted in many deaths and destruction of property through the years and their plight is inextricably linked with the transformation the country has been undergoing since the end of apartheid the author contends this work also looks at prospects for transformation and the challenges south africa faces in its quest for social justice across the spectrum in a society still dominated by whites in terms of economic power millions of blacks are still trapped in poverty with no relief in sight a factor which explains some of the violence that has been directed against foreigners mostly black african immigrants who are accused of taking jobs away from black south africans especially those living in poverty in the townships which were also the scene of the worst form of violence perpetrated against the immigrants since the end of white minority rule
