in 1143 robert of ketton produced the first latin translation of the qur an this translation extant in 24 manuscripts was one of the main ways in which latin european readers had access to the muslim holy book yet it was not the only means of transmission of quranic stories and concepts to the latin world there were other medieval translations into latin of the qur an and of christian polemical texts composed in arabic which transmitted elements of the qur an often in a polemical mode the essays in this volume examine the range of medieval latin transmission of the qur an and reaction to the qur an by concentrating on the manuscript traditions of medieval qur an translations and anti islamic polemics in latin we see how the arabic text was transmitted and studied in medieval europe we examine the strategies of translators who struggled to find a proper vocabulary and syntax to render quranic terms into latin at times showing miscomprehensions of the text or willful distortions for polemical purposes these translations and interpretations by latin authors working primarily in twelfth and thirteenth century spain were the main sources of information about islam for european scholars until well into the sixteenth century when they were printed reused and commented this volume presents a key assessment of a crucial chapter in european understandings of islam selected by choice magazine as an outstanding academic title most of what we know about attitudes toward islam in the medieval and early modern west has been based on polemical treatises against islam written by christian scholars preoccupied with defending their own faith and attacking the doctrines of others christian readings of the qur an have in consequence typically been depicted as tedious and one dimensional exercises in anti islamic hostility in reading the qur an in latin christendom 1140 1560 thomas e burman looks instead to a different set of sources the latin translations of the qur an made by european scholars and the manuscripts and early printed books in which these translations circulated using these largely unexplored materials burman argues that the reading of the qur an in western europe was much more complex while their reading efforts were certainly often focused on attacking islam scholars of the period turned out to be equally interested in a whole range of grammatical lexical and interpretive problems presented by the text indeed these two approaches were interconnected attacking the qur an often required sophisticated explorations of difficult arabic grammatical problems furthermore while most readers explicitly denounced the qur an as a fraud translations of the book are sometimes inserted into the standard manuscript format of christian bibles and other prestigious latin texts small centered blocks of text surrounded by commentary or in manuscripts embellished with beautiful decorated initials and elegant calligraphy for the pleasure of wealthy collectors addressing christian muslim relations generally as well as the histories of reading and the book burman offers a much fuller picture of how europeans read the sacred text of islam than we have previously had
