The essays in this collection address the relationship between children and cultural memory in texts both for and about young people. The collection overall is concerned with how cultural memory is shaped contested forgotten recovered and re-circulated sometimes in opposition to dominant national narratives and often for the benefit of young readers who are assumed not to possess any prior cultural memory. From the innovative development of school libraries in the 1920s to the role of utopianism in fixing cultural memory for teen readers it provides a critical look into children and ideologies of childhood as they are represented in a broad spectrum of texts including film poetry literature and architecture from Canada the United States Japan Germany Britain India and Spain. These cultural forms collaborate to shape ideas and values in turn contributing to dominant discourses about national and global citizenship. The essays included in the collection imply that childhood is an oft-imagined idealist construction based in large part on participation identity and perception. Childhood is invisible and tangible exciting and intriguing and at times elusive even as cultural and literary artifacts recreate it. Children and cultural memory in texts of childhood is a valuable resource for scholars of children's literature and culture readers interested in childhood and ideology and those working in the fields of diaspora and postcolonial studies many commentators tell us that in today's world everyday life has become selfish and atomised that individuals live only to consume but are they wrong in me me me John Lawrence re tells the story of England since the second world war through the eyes of ordinary people including his own parents to argue that in fact friendship family and place all remain central to our daily lives and whilst community has changed it is far from dead he shows how in the years after the second world war people came increasingly to question custom and tradition as the pressure to conform to societal standards became intolerable and as soon as they could millions escaped the closed face to face communities of Victorian Britain where everyone knew your business but this was not a rejection of community per se but an attempt to find another new way of living which was better suited to the modern world community has become personal and voluntary based on genuine affection rather than proximity or need we have never been better connected or able to sustain the relationships that matter to us me me me makes that case that it's time we valued and nurtured these new groups rather than lamenting the loss of more real forms of community it is all too easy to hold on to a nostalgic view of the past
