early modern scholarship often reads the dramatic representations of the muslim woman in the light of postcolonial identity politics which sees an organic relationship between the west's historical domination of the east and the western discourse on the east this book problematizes the above trajectory by arguing that the assumption of a power relation between a dominating west and a subordinate east cannot be sustained within the context of the political and historical realities of early modern europe the ottoman empire remained as a dominant superpower throughout the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and was perceived by protestant england both as a military and religious threat and as a possible ally against catholic spain reading a series of early modern plays from marlowe to beaumont and fletcher alongside a number of historical sources and documents this book reinterprets the image of islamic femininity in the period's drama to reflect this overturn in the world's power balances as well as the intricate dynamics of england's intensified contact with islam in the mediterranean for too long the norms of society found its way into freemasonry and have influenced the moral compass of a masonic lodge instead of the beauty of freemasonry being taught and sending this light into the world within enlightened minds that produces a better society this has created a domino effect of high visibility with negative repercussions that is gaining traction with the ability of masons to communicate and see masonry practiced in all parts of the world like never before now is the time to halt the slide and get back to the foundation and intent of the craft this book is the baring of my thoughts mistakes and ultimately my clarity of mind and spirit this book is my story my ideas and my vision to a better social climate within the fraternity it is my humble experience in black and white veiled secluded submissive oppressed the odalisque image has held sway over western representations of muslim women since the enlightenment of the eighteenth century yet during medieval and renaissance times european writers portrayed muslim women in exactly the opposite way as forceful queens of wanton and intimidating sexuality in this illuminating study mohja kahf traces the process through which the termagant became an odalisque in western representations of muslim women drawing examples from medieval chanson de geste and romance renaissance drama enlightenment prose and romantic poetry she links the changing images of muslim women to changes in european relations with the islamic world as well as to changing gender dynamics within western societies maría de san José Salazar 1548-1603 took the veil as a discalced barefoot carmelite nun in 1571 becoming one of teresa of avila's most important collaborators in religious reform and serving as prioress of the seville and lisbon convents within the parameters of the strict catholic reformation in spain maría fiercely defended women's rights to define their own spiritual experience and to teach inspire and lead other women in reforming their church maría wrote this book as a defense of the discalced practice of setting aside two hours each day for conversation music and staging of religious plays casting the book in the form of a dialogue maría demonstrates through fictional conversations among a group of nuns during their hours of recreation how women could serve as very effective spiritual teachers for each other the book includes one of the first biographical portraits of teresa and maria's personal account of the troubled founding of the discalced convent at seville as well as her tribulations as an inquisitional suspect rich in allusions to women's affective relationships in the early modern convent book for the hour of recreation also serves as an example of how a woman might write when relatively free of clerical censorship and expectations a detailed introduction and notes by alison weber provide historical and biographical context for amanda powell's fluid translation
