fratricide has been defined as firing on your own forces when mistaking them for enemy forces which results in injury or death rates of fratricide incidence have been steadily increasing and the complexity of the contemporary operating environment may lead to a continuation of this trend although the majority of research into fratricide has focused on the development of technological decision aids recent explorations highlight the need to emphasise the social aspects within a socio technical framework this book presents and validates via the use of case studies a model of teamwork and decision making factors that are associated with incidents of fratricide in summary it offers a review and evaluation of contemporary theoretical perspectives on teamwork and fratricide as well as a range of accident analysis approaches a novel theory of fratricide is then presented followed by a new methodology for assessing fratricide naturalistic case studies of teams are undertaken in the military domain these studies illustrate the approach and offer early validation evidence in closing the book presents a series of principles designed to reduce the likelihood of fratricide in the future

this report into the global security concerns related to afghanistan and pakistan recommends that the uk government should re focus its wide ranging objectives in afghanistan and concentrate its limited resources on one priority security the uk has experienced mission creep from its initial goal of countering international terrorism into the realms of counter insurgency counter narcotics protection of human rights and state building the committee recommends that the lead international role on counter narcotics should be transferred away from the uk the committee recognises that the security situation in afghanistan will remain precarious for some time to come but there can be no question of the international community abandoning afghanistan the issue at stake must be how best the uk and its allies can allocate responsibilities and share burdens so as to ensure that the country does not once again fall into the hands of those who seek to threaten the security of the uk and the west the committee says that a negotiated afghan led political settlement with broad popular support represents the only realistic option for long term security and stability in afghanistan there can be no serious prospect of meaningful discussions until coalition forces and the afghan national security forces gain and retain the upper hand on security across the country including in helmand and are then able to negotiate from a position of strength the international effort by the un eu and individual countries in afghanistan since 2001 has delivered much less than it promised and its impact has been significantly diluted by the absence of a unified vision and strategy grounded in the realities of afghanistan s history culture and politics
