introduction and analysis some dialogues of plato are of so various a character that their relation to the other dialogues cannot be determined with any degree of certainty the theaetetus like the parmenides has points of similarity both with his earlier and his later writings the perfection of style the humour the dramatic interest the complexity of structure the fertility of illustration the shifting of the points of view are characteristic of his best period of authorship the vain search the negative conclusion the figure of the midwives the constant profession of ignorance on the part of socrates also bear the stamp of the early dialogues in which the original socrates is not yet platonized had we no other indications we should be disposed to range the theaetetus with the apology and the phaedrus and perhaps even with the protagoras and the laches but when we pass from the style to an examination of the subject we trace a connection with the later rather than with the earlier dialogues in the first place there is the connexion indicated by plato himself at the end of the dialogue with the sophist to which in many respects the theaetetus is so little akin 1 the same persons reappear including the younger socrates whose name is just mentioned in the theaetetus
