conventional accounts of world history tend to focus on the rise of western civilisation and concentrate on the story of ancient greece the roman empire and the expansion of europe the histories of the great civilisations of china india and japan and therefore the experience of the majority of the world s people have been relegated to a minor place world history adopts a radically different approach starting from the assumption that the human story has to be seen in the round it examines the evolution of humans their lives as hunters and gatherers and their eventual adoption of agriculture before looking at the emergence of civilisation across the globe in mesopotamia egypt china the indus valley mesoamerica and peru it goes on to tell the story of the earliest empires emphasising not just their differences but also their similarities it explains how contacts were established between them and how technologies ideas and the world s great religions travelled from one to another it describes the great empires of islam of china and of the mongols only towards the end of the story does europe come slowly to dominate the world against the background of technical innovations and social and economic change history teaches us that agricultural growth and development is necessary for achieving overall better living conditions in all societies although this process may seem homogenous when looked at from the outside it is full of diversity within this book captures this diversity by presenting eleven independent case studies ranging over time and space by comparing outcomes attempts are made to draw general conclusion and lessons about the agricultural transformation process discusses global historical research as a global and diverse movement case studies focus on china germany and the united states contains spengler s well known work on the history of and the rise and fall of various civilizations this book makes a unique and timely contribution to world global historical studies and related fields it places essential world historical frameworks by top scholars in the field today in clear direct relation to and conversation with one other offering them opportunity to enrich elucidate and at times challenge one another it thereby aims to 1 offer world historians opportunity to critically reflect upon and refine their essential interpretational frameworks 2 facilitate more effective and nuanced teaching and learning in and beyond the classroom 3 provide accessible world historical contexts for specialized areas of historical as well as other fields of research in the humanities social sciences and sciences and 4 promote comparative historiographical critique which helps identify continuing research questions for the field of world history in particular as well as b further global peace and dialogue in relation to varying views of our ever increasingly interconnected interdependent multicultural and globalized world and its shared though diverse and sometimes contested history over recent decades almost every area of historical study has seen its global turn from consumption to finance from politics to migration from social order to cultural patterns this volume reflects the vibrant state of global history scholarship in europe and examines to what extent global history is practiced and conceptualised distinctively within Europe drawing together contributions from scholars from France, Germany, Hungary, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and the UK. The book offers a sweeping overview of the state of the field. In particular, the contributors look at histories of colonialism and imperial expansion, knowledge circulation, and mobility across borders. This book reflects the diversity of current scholarship on global and transnational history and will offer important insights for anyone interested in understanding the cutting edge of research in this area.
