aging is a fact of life we see our parents and grandparents go through it we even see ourselves go through it as we get older we enter a distinct stage of life complete with its own biological issues and psychological and social ones too yet most books on social aging ignore the psychological and biological aspects of aging that make the social issues so important this book provides a complete look at aging so that we can better understand the older stage of life for both ourselves and those around us this book presents a multidisciplinary perspective on social aging it takes the approach of the older person in context and how age related changes in the biological functional and psychological domains can influence the older person s interactions with his her social and physical environment unique features include an original approach a multidisciplinary perspective a framework based on research findings and attention to differences by age gender ethnic minority status sexual orientation and socio economic class social workers psychologists gerontology professionals and professors older members of minority groups are discriminated against not only because they re old but because of their ethnic group perhaps for this reason studies of older people in minorities have tended to approach the subject as a social problem this volume of essays written by minority group contributors takes a more positive view the contributions focus on how normal members of minorities cope with the problems of being old these normative patterns the demographics of older minority group members and issues of service delivery and policy are examined
