the art of selling movies presents the first ever look at 60 years of newspaper advertising for motion pictures great and small these ads created by hollywood and adapted by local and regional exhibitors motivated patrons to leave their homes part with precious income and spend time in the dark because of the high stakes involved theater operators used wildly creative means to make that happen they made movie advertising equal parts art and psychology appealing to every human instinct especially sex in an effort to push product and keep their theatres in business from the pen and ink masterpieces of the 1920s and 30s to location specific folk art to ad space jam packed with enticements for every member of the family the art of selling movies dissects the psyche of the american movie going public and the advertisers seeking to push just the right buttons this volume assesses the accomplishments of three mid 20th century north american stage directors harold clurman orson welles and margo jones though their theatre making endeavours were distinct each produced work that challenged preconceived notions of theatre making all while working within the structure of a company as directors drawn to the potential rewards of collaboration all also were keenly adept at understanding how the relationship with a company of collaborators is often marked by struggle and crisis the essays in this volume explore how these accomplished directors not only created bold work but also drew on the complex energies of the theatre companies with which they worked to reimagine the shape and scope of theatre directing the great north american stage directors series provides an authoritative account of the art of directing in north america by examining the work of twenty four major practitioners from the late 19th century to the present each of the eight volumes examines three directors and offers an overview of their practices theoretical ideas and contributions to modern theatre the studies chart the life and work of each major north american theatre director placing his or her achievement in the context of other important theatre practitioners and broader social history written by a team of leading experts the series presents the genealogy of directing in north america while simultaneously chronicling crucial trends and championing contemporary interpretation a classic work of american theatre based on the scopes monkey trial of 1925 which pitted clarence darrow against william jennings bryan in defense of a schoolteacher accused of teaching the theory of evolution the accused was a slight frightened man who had deliberately broken the law his trial was a roman circus the chief gladiators were two great legal giants of the century like two bull elephants locked in mortal combat they bellowed and roared imprecations and abuse the spectators sat uneasily in the sweltering heat with murder in their hearts barely able to restrain themselves at stake was the freedom of every american one of the most moving and meaningful plays of our generation praise for inherit the wind a tidal wave of a drama new york world telegram and sun jerome lawrence and robert e lee were classic broadway scribes who knew how to crank out serious plays for thinking americans inherit the wind is a perpetually prescient courtroom battle over the legality of teaching evolution we re still arguing this case all the way to the white house chicago tribune powerful a crackling good courtroom play that provides two of the juiciest roles in american theater copley news service this historical drama deserves respect the columbus dispatch
