background information activities and projects to teach about earthquakes hurricanes volcanoes and other forces of nature human history is periodically punctuated by natural disasters from vesuvius eruption to the modern day covid 19 pandemic volcanoes have buried entire cities earthquakes have reduced structures to smoldering ruins floods and cyclones have wreaked havoc on river valleys and coastlines and desertification and climate change have weakened society's underpinnings death tolls are often escalated by starvation and illness which frequently occur in tandem this second edition assesses natural disasters on human society and the effect of strategies developed to reduce their impact this book addresses the interconnectivity of disaster and human responsibility through 23 updated case studies including a new chapter on the 2011 tōhoku tsunami and the ensuing fukushima nuclear disaster an earthquake shatters haiti and a hurricane slices through texas we hear that nature runs rampant seeking to destroy us through these natural disasters science recounts a different story however disasters are not the consequence of natural causes they are the consequence of human choices and decisions we put ourselves in harm's way we fail to take measures which we know would prevent disasters no matter what the environment does this can be both hard to accept and hard to unravel a complex of factors shape disasters they arise from the political processes dictating where and what we build and from social circumstances which create and perpetuate poverty and discrimination they develop from the social preference to blame nature for the damage wrought when in fact events such as earthquakes and storms are entirely commonplace environmental processes we feel the need to fight natural forces to reclaim what we assume is ours and to protect ourselves from what we perceive to be wrath from outside our communities this attitude distracts us from the real causes of disasters humanity's decisions as societies and as individuals it stops us accepting the real solutions to disasters making better decisions this book explores stories of some of our worst disasters to show how we can and should act to stop people dying when nature unleashes its energies the disaster is not the tornado the volcanic eruption or climate change but the deaths and injuries the loss of irreplaceable property and the lack and even denial of support to affected people so that a short term interruption becomes a long term recovery nightmare but we can combat this as kelman shows describing inspiring examples of effective human action that limits damage such as managing flooding in toronto and villages in bangladesh or wildfires in colorado throughout his message is clear there is no such thing as a natural disaster the disaster lies in our inability to deal with the environment and with ourselves offers the first comprehensive overview of research into hazards and disasters from a historical perspective this title is also available as open access on cambridge core a natural disaster is the consequence of a natural hazard such as volcanic eruption earthquake or landslide which affect human activities human vulnerability exacerbated by the lack of planning or appropriate emergency management leads to financial environmental and human losses the resulting loss depends on the capacity of the population to support or resist the disaster human history is replete with various types of natural disasters some recent being tsunami in indian ocean sichuan earthquake orissa super cyclone and katrina hurricane in the u s this book describes the characteristics and magnitude of these deadly natural disasters along with the damages and causalities caused by them as well as their social economic and environmental impacts also it presents some moving stories survival and rehabilitation disasters are part of the modern condition a source of physical anxiety and existential angst and they are increasing in frequency cost and severity drawing on both disaster research and social theory this book offers a critical examination of their causes consequences and future avoidance tune into the news today and one would think that human beings were at risk of being wiped from the face of the earth by tsunamis earthquakes swine flu or terrorism one could be forgiven for thinking that we are in far more danger today than ever before the fact of the matter is that danger has always stalked mankind from ancient volcanoes and floods to the cholera and small pox to hitler and stalin s genocidal murders during the twentieth century our continued existence has always seemed perilous now out of our horror comes an entertaining and epic journal through the history of disaster disaster offers perspective on today s fears by revealing how dangerous our world has always been natural disasters and man made catastrophes mark every era here is the black death that killed seventy five million in europe and asia during the 1300s the 1883 volcanic eruption on krakatoa the irish potato famine of the mid nineteenth century the nazi holocaust the 1970 storm in bangladesh now considered the deadliest in history and more train crashes air disasters and shipwrecks litter human history sure to scare inform and entertain disaster is a book of serious history that is as much fun as any horror film
