this book critically examines the practice of international criminal justice based on the experience of war criminals who have been tried for their crimes presenting the perspectives of those commonly referred to as genocidaires war criminals or criminals against humanity this book presents their experience of international criminal justice and its impact on them by presenting their points of view and their feelings about justice it becomes possible to describe the way in which this branch of justice is apprehended by the perpetrators of mass crimes to produce testimony about the lived penal experience and to analyse the functioning of this institution through a new prism that of the persons standing trial from this perspective a new analysis of international justice is produced one that reveals its aporias as it demonstrates the difficulties international criminal justice faces insofar as the justifications that support it are not all confirmed and as some of the expectations placed on it are shown to be difficult to reach if not clearly unattainable based on over 60 interviews carried out over a period of twelve years with persons tried by the international criminal tribunal for the former yugoslavia and the international criminal tribunal for rwanda this book offers a unique analysis of the working of international criminal justice this interdisciplinary book will appeal to those with relevant interests in law criminology sociology and criminology the rwandan genocide has become a touchstone for debates about the causes of mass violence and the responsibilities of the international community yet a number of key questions about this tragedy remain unanswered how did the violence spread from community to community and so rapidly engulf the nation why did individuals make decisions that led them to take up machetes against their neighbors and what was the logic that drove the campaign of extermination according to scott straus a social scientist and former journalist in east africa for several years who received a pulitzer prize nomination for his reporting for the houston chronicle many of the widely held beliefs about the causes and course of genocide in rwanda are incomplete they focus largely on the actions of the ruling elite or the inaction of the international community considerably less is known about how and why elite decisions became widespread exterminatory violence challenging the prevailing wisdom straus provides substantial new evidence about local patterns of violence using original research including the most comprehensive surveys yet undertaken among convicted perpetrators to assess competing theories about the causes and dynamics of the genocide current interpretations stress three main causes for the genocide ethnic identity ideology and mass media indoctrination in particular the influence of hate radio straus s research does not deny the importance of ethnicity but he finds that it operated more as a background condition instead straus emphasizes fear and intra ethnic intimidation as the primary drivers of the violence a defensive civil war and the assassination of a president created a feeling of acute insecurity rwanda s unusually effective state was also central as was the country s geography and population density which limited the number of exit options for both victims and perpetrators in conclusion straus steps back from the particulars of the rwandan genocide to offer a new dynamic model for understanding other instances of genocide in recent history the holocaust armenia cambodia the balkans and assessing the future likelihood of such events in 1948 the united nations established the genocide convention to legally define genocide as actions intended to destroy a particular group of people based on race religion ethnicity and other defining characteristics the goal was to prevent and punish future acts of genocide but a number of mass killings have followed since its establishment and in some situations whether these executions qualify as genocides is surprisingly unclear the viewpoints in this volume explore what genocide is and isn't and provide historical and contemporary examples of genocide readers will examine potential political and social solutions to prevent future genocides political or social groups wanting to commit mass murder on the basis of racial ethnic or religious differences are never hindered by a lack of willing executioners social psychologist james waller uncovers the internal and external factors which lead ordinary people to commit these acts of evil social psychologist james waller uncovers the internal and external factors that can lead ordinary people to commit extraordinary acts of evil waller offers a sophisticated and comprehensive psychological view of how anyone can potentially participate in heinous crimes against humanity he outlines the evolutionary forces that shape human nature the individual dispositions that are more likely to engage in acts of evil and the context of cruelty in which these extraordinary acts can emerge eyewitness accounts are presented at the end of each chapter in this second edition waller has revised and updated eyewitness accounts and substantially reworked part ii of the book removing the chapter about human nature and evolutionary adaptations and instead using this evolutionary perspective as a base for his entire model of human evil love blossoms between a young jewish doctor named ben and danae a christian student nurse when they meet under colliding circumstances when ben takes the woman he has fallen in love with to meet his family they are not only faced with danae's deepest fears but it brings to a head a lifelong underlying friction between ben and his father daniel ben is now faced with difficult choices between his love for danae and the extent of what he is willing to do in order to help heal deep hurts his encounter with truth as he seeks to seal his relationship with danae in marriage leads him into unexpected and mysterious paths dana must now put into practice that which is commanded of every believer the command to forgive her strong christian values and trust in god enable her to lovingly confront ben with the possibility that there is a hidden pain that his father could be carrying that has caused his inability to respond to and express love to his sons although faced with the reality that marriage to ben might not be in god's sovereign plan because they are unequally yoked she continues in the relationship and is encouraged by the warmth extended by ben's mother miriam
