originally published in 1980 this work answers the crucial question of how social change should be guided in the developing countries professor varma begins by posing the problems of the general scope of modernization and the general criteria used in the modernization process he examines carefully some of the models that have been used for this purpose in the past providing extensive summaries of the views on modernization of theorists in various social science disciplines including sociology politics economics and anthropology and stresses the importance of these views in guiding policy decisions the book concludes with a comparison of the development processes of the united states the soviet union china japan and india the political history of italy has been an undeniably turbulent one the country s political system has been repeatedly threatened by the historical existence of extremist parties on the left and right an economy which struggles to adapt the cleavage between a developed north and an underdeveloped south the challenge posed by terrorist groups and organized crime high public debt and governments that last on average only ten months paradoxically however italy continues to muddle through from one political crisis to another with one of the world s highest standards of living and quality of life what is the secret of italian politics what the contributors to this volume offer is neither a romantic version of the course of polish history nor a jubilant account of the recovery of national independence and political choice rather they offer a variety of tough minded analytic perspectives on what comes when the party s over not just the pspr but the celebration marking its downfall they focus on poland s movement toward an internationally competitive market economy a political democracy in which plural interests compete and the constitution of a civil society that both tolerates and ameliorates conflict the multidisciplinary contributors include jan mujzel keith crane benjamin slay kazimierz poznanski jan bossak wojciech bienkowski wlodzimierz wesolowski edmund wnuk lipinski adam sarapata andrzej sicinski piotr lukasiewicz krzysztof nowak david s mason adrzej rycharz krzysztof jasiewicz jack bielasiak janusz reykowski stanislaw gebethner mirosława marody edmund mokrzycki and michael d kennedy in this classic work of feminist political thought iris marion young challenges the prevailing reduction of social justice to distributive justice the starting point for her critique is the experience and concerns of the new social movements that were created by marginal and excluded groups including women african americans and american indians as well as gays and lesbians young argues that by assuming a homogeneous public democratic theorists fail to consider institutional arrangements for including people not culturally identified with white european male norms consequently theorists do not adequately address the problems of an inclusive participatory framework basing her vision of the good society on the culturally plural networks of contemporary urban life young makes the case that normative theory and public policy should undermine group based oppression by affirming rather than suppressing social group differences provided by publisher
