Frequently Asked Questions FAQs 1 Where can I find research papers by Bekaert and Hodrick relevant to International Financial Management? You can access their published papers through academic databases like JSTOR, ScienceDirect, and Google Scholar. Searching for keywords like Bekaert, Hodrick, exchange rates, Bekaert Hodrick asset pricing, or Bekaert Hodrick international finance will yield relevant results. 2 How can I practically implement currency hedging in my business? Consult with a financial institution or a specialized currency risk management firm. They can advise you on suitable hedging strategies based on your specific needs and risk tolerance. 3 What are the key differences between domestic and international capital budgeting? International capital budgeting requires considering exchange rate risk, political risk, differing tax laws, and repatriation of profits, which are not usually factors in domestic projects. 4 How can I assess political risk in foreign markets? Use country risk ratings from agencies like the World Bank, consult political risk reports from specialized firms, and perform thorough due diligence on the political and regulatory environment of the target country. 5 Is it always beneficial to diversify internationally? While international diversification can reduce risk, it also introduces new complexities such as managing foreign exchange risk and navigating different regulatory environments. The decision to diversify internationally should be based on a careful cost-benefit analysis considering the specific circumstances of the business.
