the humid morning of february 22 1967 found lieutenant colonel alexander haig standing in a helicopter above the dense jungle canopy of tay ninh province south vietnam below him elements of the 1st infantry division were about to launch operation junction city one of the largest search and destroy missions of the vietnam war as haig surveyed the terrain through his binoculars he embodied the confidence of american military leadership in a strategy that promised to bring victory through superior firepower and mobility what he could not foresee was that this very strategy would become both the defining characteristic and ultimate failure of america s longest war search and destroy emerged not from military academies or strategic planning committees but from the fundamental misunderstanding of the nature of the conflict in vietnam when the first american combat troops landed at da nang in march 1965 they brought with them a doctrine forged in the conventional battles of world war ii and korea the concept was deceptively simple locate enemy forces engage them with overwhelming firepower and destroy their capacity to fight in the context of vietnam this translated into aggressive patrolling rapid response to intelligence reports and the liberal use of artillery and air support to eliminate communist forces by the end of the american war in vietnam the coastal province of ph    n was one of the least secure provinces in the republic of vietnam it was also a prominent target of the american strategy of pacification an effort purportedly separate and distinct from conventional warfare to win the hearts and minds of the vietnamese in robert j thompson iii's analysis the consistent and consistently unsuccessful struggle to place ph    n under saigon's banner makes the province particularly fertile ground for studying how the americans advanced pacification and why this effort ultimately failed in march 1970 a disastrous military engagement began in ph    n revealing the enemy's continued presence after more than three years of pacification clear hold and destroy provides a fresh perspective on the war across multiple levels from those making and implementing policy to those affected by it most pointedly thompson contends that pacification far from existing apart from conventional warfare actually depended on conventional military forces for its application his study reaches back into ph    n's storied history with pacification before and during the french colonial period then focuses on the province from the onset of the american war in 1965 to its conclusion in 1975 a sharply focused fine grained analysis of one critical province during the vietnam war thompson's work demonstrates how pacification is better understood as the foundation of u s fighting in vietnam the vietnam war remains one of the most heroic and heartbreaking events in history this definitive e guide charts the unforgettable story of the world's first televised war hundreds of insightful images and a compelling narrative combine to chronicle this catastrophic conflict from 1955 the communist government of north vietnam waged war against south vietnam and its main ally the usa over the course of two decades of hostility and warfare the number of casualties reached an incomprehensible three million people detailed descriptions of every episode including operation passage to freedom and the evacuation of the american embassy in saigon tell the stories in iconic photographs and eyewitness accounts discover the real people behind the conflict with gripping biographies of key figures including henry kissinger general thieu president nixon and pol pot this incredible visual record is supported by locator maps at a glance timelines archive photography and key quotations to ensure an all encompassing experience the vietnam war is an essential historic reference to help humanity learn the lessons of suffering and sacrifice from one of the bloodiest conflicts of the 20th century
