many world class thinkers and creators have been concerned about the state of education in the united states discover their thoughts on how children really learn and what teachers must do to optimally tap children s latent abilities during the last three decades education reformers have pushed standardized testing and policies like no child left behind and common core to improve test scores and proficiency in basic skills however during this period that author thomas armstrong calls the miseducation of america a number of troubling trends have surfaced including a decrease in creative thinking scores among children in kindergarten through third grade rather than focus on what's wrong with the education system that has produced these outcomes. Armstrong lays out what creative thinkers know about how children should be educated in an extended thought experiment he asks what would happen if we turned the reins of educational policy over not to the politicians and educational bureaucrats but to eminent thinkers and creators like Albert Einstein, Pablo Picasso, Martin Luther King Jr., Rachel Carson, Doris Lessing, Jane Goodall, and other seminal culture builders. What might they say about the best way to educate a child? If Einstein ran the schools, suggests that the answers to this intriguing question should guide future efforts to reform our nation's schools.

Help young writers learn to engage and invite their reader's thinking with five key thinking strategies: connect, question, visualize, infer, and transform.

Literacy education can take place in many locations and periods across the lifespan. Literacy educators require flexibility and a deep toolbox to meet their students' diverse needs regardless of whether they work in traditional school and college settings or in other environments with varied populations. Teaching literacy in diverse contexts shows how practical experiences can be used in creative ways to support educator development for teaching literacy in a global context. Mentorship between a developing literacy educator and an experienced teacher educator is central to the book and to the practical experiences in training or professional development that it focuses on. Chapters share the creative solutions discovered during mentorship that supported developing literacy educators to teach with authenticity in a number of contexts including the adult learning sector, a rural community in Africa, and alongside parents of very sick children. The authors demonstrate how this can be done in a sensitive and culturally relevant manner by parents, volunteers, and teachers with varying degrees of experience in both formal and informal spaces. Together, the chapters build a crucial resource for preparing a broad range of literacy educators to teach literacy in many contexts where policy on how best to teach reading and writing to diverse student bodies ebbs and flows.
