Australia is comfortable with Indonesia's rise because Indonesia is neither too weak nor too strong in economic or military terms to be perceived as a threat or create difficulties for Australia. As a result, Australia has no interest in containing Indonesian power or influence. Instead, Canberra's goal is to neutralise or dilute Indonesia's threat perception of Australia and minimise political and diplomatic tension between the two countries.

This book is particularly timely in light of continuing international efforts to integrate Asia literacy into a national educational system where understanding of Asia, its languages, cultures, histories and beliefs is still at an emergent stage for a nation that is evolving into what George Megalogenis refers to as an Eurasian society. 2015 The contributors to this collection range from the pioneers who created and developed the Asia literacy research space to those who bring additional new theoretical insights through disciplines such as linguistics and ethnography. Their analysis has resulted in recommendations to develop a deeper understanding of working and living in diverse communities. The book also brings together theoretical perspectives on the current Australian socio-cultural and political context and how that can impact on pedagogical advancement in Asia literacy. The book argues for a broadening focus on what the outcomes of Asia literacy in a global world can be for all Australians and offers counter-narratives to the myth of a homogenous white Australian culture to provide new ways of engaging with curriculum and pedagogy that transcend superficial awareness of multiculturalism to embrace realistic and reflective principles of global education.

Now available in Australia with the most up-to-date information about the new Work Choices legislation. For orders use ISBN 0470813210. This book is the third edition of the highly regarded introductory management text by Paul Davidson and Ricky Griffin. It has been thoroughly revised and updated to reflect the current trends and practices of Australasian businesses. Each chapter's content is presented within a global context of management where the new work environment knows no geographic boundaries. A solid foundation of research provides the background against which Australian, New Zealand and Asia Pacific illustrative examples are used. These examples are drawn from small to medium size enterprises as well as larger multinational corporations. A critical thinking perspective is integrated throughout the book, asking and encouraging students to analyse the theory in light of real world examples. The text emphasises the importance of ethics in internal and external business environments, acknowledges diversity in the workforce and the need to manage information technology knowledge and quality to achieve organisational goals.

the shift in the framework of australia s strategic thinking from the asia pacific to the indo pacific reflects the primary focus on the maritime environment in the coming decades and the expectation that over time india will become more embedded in the strategic dynamics of the asia pacific india is in the midst of a major geopolitical repositioning as it pursues a hard headed national interests based policy and builds stronger strategic ties with a wide range of countries including the united states and its allies in the region the region is entering a potentially dangerous phase in u s china relations china s rise needs to be managed not frustrated balanced not contained constructing that balance and anchoring china in a new multi polar strategic equilibrium in the indo pacific is the big challenge of our time more and more individual southeast asian countries are being pulled into china s orbit not with enthusiasm or conviction but because they see that the economic cost of opposing china s agenda is too high the united states is so far doing little to change this
