the narrative re tellings of the life reign and death of the english king edward ii reigned 1307 1327 present a unique opportunity for scholars of sexuality in the early modern era this is because the works of authors like christopher marlowe michael drayton sir francis hubert elizabeth cary and richard niccols were all inspired by the public cultural memory fashioned from edward s same sex love affair with piers gaveston as such each of them presents a particular representation of and a specific discourse about male male sexual relations in the renaissance in other words what these works present is a concentrated body of literature about same sex love in the early modern era works that openly and frankly explore the possible origins of the love the reasons and causes for it works that explore the ramifications of male male romantic relationships works that explore the sexual politics and sociocultural dynamics of same sex romantic partnerships and works that describe and denote same sex love from an english renaissance perspective this study looks at each of the major renaissance texts about edward ii and examines the means through which each text understands and analyzes the nature of male male same sex love from marlowe s crafting of a lover identity for edward to drayton s obsession with marlowe s version of gay history from hubert s augustinian construction of edward s nature to cary s identification with the fallen king to niccols inspired exemplum what each of these works demonstrates is that the love that dare not speak its name would not be silenced at least not in the case of edward and gaveston when one sees the name edward ii one also sees his same sex loves the correlation has become ingrained into our public recall of history thus as far as the world is concerned edward ii was and ever will be the gay king most christians are unaware of the doctrinal debates taking place within the religious academic community when they are aware of these discussions they may consider them irrelevant or even harmful to christian practice jaime clark soles invites seminarians seminary faculty and church leaders to find common ground by considering the various debates the reasons they persist the implications of each and how they pertain to christian identity and faith within the larger contemporary culture includes study questions this study provides an authoritative overview of all marlowe s work it includes thorough investigations of his major plays tamburlaine edward ii the jew of malta and doctor faustus as well as a full discussion of the massacre at paris dido queen of carthage and all his extant poetry analysis of faustus takes full account of both a and b text versions thoroughly researched and yet presented in an accessible engaging style a preface to marlowe reads marlowe s life and times as well as his work in the light of current critical theory consequently it is a vital guide for all students of early modern drama as well as providing sharp analysis of stage history dr simkin reflects on the wider significance of a stage oriented approach the result is a reading of marlowe that re opens debates about his status as a radical figure and as a subversive playwright and invites the reader to experience the plays as immediate exciting live documents
