black theology as a discipline emerged in 1960s america growing out of the experiences of black people of the african diaspora as they sought to re interpret the central ideas of christianity in light of struggle and oppression however a form of black theology has been present in britain since the time of slavery black theology in britain offers the first comprehensive survey of black theology tracing its development in britain from the eighteenth century to today the essays cover a wide range of topics black liberation drama as a medium for black theology the perspective of black women black theology in the pulpit and pastoral care and the work of robert beckford and anthony reddie black theology in britain is a key resource for students of british history cultural studies black theology and religious studies since cone s black theology and black power was first published in 1969 he has been recognized as one of the most creative contemporary black theologians roundly criticized by white theologians the book and cone's subsequent writings nevertheless gave voice and viability to the developing black theological movement of the late 1960s despite his influence on the african american religious community scholars have written very little about his works in part because of the sharp rhetoric and polemics of his first two books discussed here are some of his major writings from his first essay christianity and black power 1968 through the major work martin malcolm america 1991 the systematic development of his themes social and economic analysis black sexism relations between black feminist and so called third world theologies etc is fully explained challenging all who are concerned about religion in today's world j deotis roberts outlines a new way of looking at the essential questions roberts proposes a theology concerned with concrete and specific situations that also retains a universal vision in discussing the relationship of american black thought to african liberation feminist asian and euro american theologies he covers significant religious issues such as love justice power and evil diana hayes explores the sources of black theology from within the black historical experience and takes readers from the roots of black theology in africa through the revivals of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and the civil rights and black power movements to the beginnings of a systematic theology of liberation this volume discusses normative theological categories from a black perspective and argues that there is no major christian doctrine on which black theology has not commented part one explores introductory questions such as what have been the historical and social factors fostering a black theology and what are some of the internal factors key to its growth part two examines major doctrines which have been important for black theology in terms of clarifying key intellectual foci common to the study of religion the final part discusses black theology as a world wide development constituted by interdisciplinary approaches the volume has an important role in bringing christian thought into confrontation with one of the central challenges of modernity namely the problem of race and racism this companion puts theological themes in conversation with issues of ethnicity gender social analysis politics and class and is ideal for undergraduate and graduate students this autobiographical work is truly the capstone to the career of the man widely regarded as the father of black theology dr cone a distinguished professor at union theological seminary died april 27 2018 during the 1960s and 1970s he argued for racial justice and an interpretation of the christian gospel that elevated the voices of the oppressed ssd black theology and its relationship to other christian theologies especially liberation theology and secular ideologies is addressed in this collection of essays first published in 1986

black theology of liberation in the usa and south africa sa both began from the mid 1960s to the early 1970s they carried the energy of the youth who were eager to change the world so that all peoples would enjoy life and live as neighbors legal racial laws still existed in parts of the us in the mid 1960s and apartheid laws on separation of races were as normal and accepted as breathing air given the major racial divides and the presence of human differences in all of society concerned individuals in both countries realized that religious practice or the study of religion could not be done separate from the everyday lives of ordinary people in response to racial laws blacks created a vibrant renaissance of black culture and organizations song stories histories and coalitions flourished blacks of all classes became energized and participated in a rebirth of what it meant to be black what was a true citizenship rooted in justice in fact it was a profound striving to produce a new vision of the us and south africa deep and broad hope filled these communities and many throughout both countries black religious leaders and ordinary people of faith were heavily impacted by this bubbling and creative black renaissance the founders of black liberation theology in both countries emerged out of this larger movement to redefine what is a healthy community with healthy individuals in recent years usa and sa have had their first black elected presidents i e nelson mandela and barack obama such historic and amazing developments show strides in both countries across the atlantic yet the economic success after us legal segregation and sa apartheid seemed to have gone primarily to only the top 5 percent of black people the republication of we are one voice is still needed today questions of poor and working people women s rights and the importance of connecting spirituality and faith to culture politics and economics are even more pressing in the twenty first century than they were in the last
