it is not uncommon that a group of scientists from many different disciplines join a working group discuss a topic of interest and edit a volume of articles related to this topic they may even agree on a jointly written introduction or conclusion the study group environmental standards established in 1987 as an expert panel of the german academy of sciences and technology in berlin broke with that common tradition and became involved in a fascinating but also pain staking experiment to compose a document on setting environmental standards that has been literally written and authorized by all group members the group consisted of eleven individuals representing the following disciplines physics chemistry biology engineering law psychology and sociology economics the study group had two major goals first to provide a document that summarizes the state of the art in each discipline with respect to the topic of environmental standards since it is impossible to cover all environmental hazards in one book the panel members agreed to limit the discussion of the scientific material to one major case study the effects of ionizing radiation this topic was selected because the scientific data base is well developed in this area and levels of anthropogenic release can be compared with natural background levels these two conditions are rarely met by most chemical hazards this comprehensive research handbook offers an innovative analysis of environmental law in the global south and contributes to an important reassessment of some of its major underlying concepts the research handbook discusses areas rarely prioritized in environmental law such as land rights and underlines how these intersect with issues including poverty livelihoods and the use of natural resources challenging familiar narratives around development and sustainability in this context and providing new insights into environmental justice emphasizes the relevance of legal environment topics to business functions e g marketing finance human resources accounting manufacturing excerpted cases include substantial portions of original language of the court and competing arguments the text presents a strong emphasis on ethics international law environmental law and women s legal concerns this fully updated second edition of corporate accountability in international environmental law examines systematically all international sources of corporate accountability standards with specific reference to environmental protection and elaborates on their theoretical and practical implications for international environmental law the book argues that although international environmental law does not bind multinational corporations and other business entities growing practice points to the emergence and consolidation of international legal standards these standards allow adapting and translating inter state obligations embodied in international environmental law into specific normative benchmarks to determine the legitimacy of the conduct of the private sector against internationally recognized values and rules the role of international organizations who in the absence of state intervention identify and promote the application of selected international environmental standards is analyzed in depth this analysis demonstrates how these international organizations are a driving force in establishing and operationalizing international standards for corporate environmental accountability the new edition includes a recent assessment of the rio 20 summit analysis of the un framework on business and human rights and the 2012 performance standards it contains a discussion on the role of fair and equitable benefit sharing under the convention on biological diversity and international human rights law and analysis of the monitoring practice of the un special rapporteur on indigenous peoples rights this is an open access title available under the terms of a cc by nc nd 4 0 international licence it is offered as a free pdf download from oup and selected open access locations
