excerpt from poultry for the table and market versus fancy fowls with an exposition of the fallacies of poultry farming in publishing this book i have had but one object in view and that is the increase of the quality of marketable poultry and the quantity of eggs produced in this country i wish it to be distinctly understood that this work has not been written in opposition to the keeping of ornamental and fancy poultry as such i am not opposed to the holding of poultry shows by those who are pleased with the cultivation of ornamental fowls nor am i opposed to the holding of flower shows but i regard poultry shows as ordinarily conducted to have no more to do with the produce of marketable and useful poultry than flower shows have to do with garden or agricultural produce i think it greatly to be lamented that at our large agricultural exhibitions really useful poultry should have been entirely ignored in favour of feather varieties i am not sanguine enough to suppose that any variety of poultry can be kept to produce the large amount of chickens and eggs that are required for consumption in this country the production of poultry is the business of the small farmer and small landed proprietor as many birds can be kept around the homestead of a farm of thirty or fifty acres as can be maintained about one of 500 or 1000 about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
