we can't tax and spend our way back to the good times arthur b laffer and stephen moore when arthur b laffer spearheaded the theory of supply side economics and became a member of president reagan's economic policy advisory board he took his place as an economic icon more recently he joined with stephen moore and peter j tanous to write the end of prosperity a clarion call delineating what is wrong with current political approaches to america's present economic challenges steve forbes himself described the end of prosperity as brilliantly insightful saying read it and act now arthur laffer and stephen moore follow the rousing success of the end of prosperity with a book even more vital to america and americans delivering a plan that shows how our country can regain its lost prosperity with the economy flat on its back unemployment at a twenty five year high and the housing default crisis still worsening is this even possible but america can once again become the land of economic opportunity and this brilliant new book tells us exactly how while president george w bush and president barack obama may hail from different parties their response to the crisis has been strikingly similar the bush obama plan is a failure that has produced nothing except a cascade of trillions of dollars of debt is the situation hopeless no say arthur laffer and stephen moore resoundingly the situation is not hopeless a return to prosperity is still entirely possible if the correct strategies are followed in the end of prosperity the authors primarily discussed how lower taxes are essential to economic growth now in return to prosperity they detail the other essential components putting government at all levels on a low fat diet emphasizing debt reduction and retirement and bringing back the investor class in america where every american can own a piece of the rock in a time where most of the proposed solutions are fraught with peril the argument provides a refreshing counterbalance the return to prosperity is a prescription that gives america the fundamental tools it needs in order to set about recovery this book is an urgently needed road map to renewed prosperity and it is vital reading for anyone who worries that the current economy is faltering with no clear plan articulated for recovery the book focuses on low carbon issues and china s economy which is analyzed from the perspective of electricity economics it proposes the novel concept of an economic gene to reflect certain characteristics of the economy the gene mapping of china s economy has been studied based on production functions with electricity economic mutations have also been studied with the aim of diagnosing problems in the economy two such mutations have occurred in china since 1978 the most recent being in 2012 and no further mutation is expected until 2025 the book describes the inherent quality of china s economy from 2012 to 2025 and how mechanism reforms would greatly improve marginal representative factor productivity in this period the agents response equilibrium are approach to simulate national economy based on multi agent technology is proposed another cornerstone of the model is the input output table simulated input output tables from 2011 to 2025 are provided in the book this book provides recommendations for policy makers and advisors and is a valuable resource for researchers in the fields of economics public policies low carbon development electricity and energy it also provides insights into china s economic development cross country differences in economic resilience in an economy s ability to withstand and adjust to shocks remain significant in the euro area in part the differences reflect the lack of a national nominal exchange rate as a mechanism to adjust to shocks the imf staff has argued that union wide architectural changes such as the banking union the capital markets union and a central fiscal capacity can help foster greater international risk sharing yet even these changes cannot insure against all shocks national policies thus have a vital role to play this imf staff discussion note analyzes how national structural policies can help euro area countries better deal with economic shocks using a mix of empirical and modeling approaches the note finds that growth enhancing reforms to labor and product market regulations tailored to country specific circumstances would help individual euro area economies weather adverse shocks higher quality insolvency regimes are associated with more efficient factor reallocation following a shock the note also finds that structural and cyclical policies interact greater rigidities make economies more fragile putting a higher burden on fiscal policy this is especially true for members of a monetary union countries should build fiscal space in good times and tackle rigidities reducing their need for countercyclical policies in bad times while making countercyclical policies more effective when deployed innovation in low carbon technologies lcts which is essential in the fight against climate change has slowed in recent years this staff discussion note shows that a global climate policy strategy can bolster innovation in and deployment of lcts countries that expand their climate policy portfolio exhibit higher 1 climate change mitigation patent filings 2 lct trade flows and 3 green foreign direct investment flows importantly boosting innovation in and deployment of lcts yields medium term growth which mitigates potential costs from climate policies this note stresses the importance of international policy coordination and cooperation by showcasing evidence of potential climate policy spillovers
