Ireland's remarkable economic growth over the last 15 years had strong effects on the energy sector due to rapidly increasing demand. Ireland has become much more dependent on international energy markets than it was in the past. This review analyses the

The UNECE FAO Forest Products Annual Market Review 2007 2008 provides general and statistical information on forest products markets in 2007 and early 2008 in the UN Economic Commission for Europe region: Europe, North America and Eastern Europe, Caucasus and Central Asia. The review begins with an overview chapter followed by a chapter on the policy implications of market developments, then a description of the economic situation and factors affecting forest products markets in the region. Market developments in five standard sectors based on annual country supplied statistics are described for wood raw materials, sawn softwood, sawn hardwood, wood based panels and paper and paperboard. Regular chapters discuss markets for wood energy, certified forest products, value added wood products and tropical timber. In each chapter, production, trade and consumption are analysed and relevant development on specific markets and policies are included.

this paper presents a unified framework for understanding the determinants of both ceo incentives and total pay levels in competitive market equilibrium it embeds a modified principal agent problem into a talent assignment model to endogenize both elements of compensation the model's closed form solutions yield testable predictions for how incentives should vary across firms under optimal contracting in particular our calibrations show that the negative relationship between the ceo's effective equity stake and firm size is quantitatively consistent with efficiency and need not reflect rent extraction our model and data both also imply that the dollar change in wealth for a percentage change in firm value scaled by annual pay is independent of firm size this may render it an attractive incentive measure as it is comparable between firms and over time the theory also predicts a positive relationship between pay volatility and firm volatility and that risk and effort affect total pay along the cross section but not in the aggregate finally we demonstrate that incentive compensation is effective at solving large agency problems such as selecting corporate strategy but smaller issues such as perk consumption are best addressed through direct monitoring national bureau of economic research web site
