written specifically as a teaching text and authored by a team of leading academics in the field this is the first book to bring together the key issues of rapid urbanisation with approaches to planning and housing outlining and explaining core concepts from informal settlements to sustainability it focuses on the rapid urbanization of developing countries with case studies from latin america asia and sub saharan africa the impact of rapid urbanization and associated globalization on land use and housing is described and analyzed with reference to the particular issues of poverty health and the environment of these areas providing an accessible introduction to the key issues as well as enhancing current theoretical debates and exploring practical applications this book is an essential resource for students and researchers in this area a neoliberal framework for urban housing development in the global south highlights the factors which predict urban housing development from developing countries perspective providing a guide for countries in the sub sahara in recent years many nations have asked why not enough housing is being built or when it is built why it isn't of the highest quality or in the best most sustainable locations politics planning and housing supply in australia england and hong kong examines the politics and planning of new homes in three very different settings but with shared political traditions in australia in england and in hong kong it investigates the power relationships and politics that underpin the allocation of land for large scale residential schemes and the processes and politics that lead to particular development outcomes using a comparative framework it asks how different systems of urban governance and planning mediate the supply of land for housing whether and how these system differences influence the location quantity and price of residential land and the implications for housing outcomes what can be learned from these different systems for allocating land building consensus between different stakeholders and delivering a steady supply of high quality and well located homes accessible to and appropriate for diverse housing needs this book frames each case study in a comprehensive examination of national and territorial frameworks before dissecting key local cases these local cases urban renewal and greenfield growth centres in australia new towns and strategic sites in england and major development schemes in hong kong explore how broader urban planning and housing policy goals play out at the local level while the book highlights a number of potential strategies for improving planning and housing delivery processes the real challenge is to give voice to a broader array of interests reconstituting the political process surrounding planning and housing development to prioritise homes in well planned places for the many rather than simply facilitating investment opportunities for the few this title was first published in 2002 when a developer wants to realize a housing scheme what can the local planning authority do to assure that the resulting residential environment is of a high quality this book explores the question through a cross national comparison of housing development processes in the netherlands the united kingdom germany and france it analyzes how decisions about the residential environment are made in different situations and by whom by applying this analysis to housing development processes in different countries the book paints a picture of how public policy and market mechanisms together influence the development of housing from this conclusions are drawn about how local planning authorities can achieve their objectives concerning the quality of housing areas previously knowledge about housing has been available only from widely disparate sources focused on the traditional disciplines of construction design building control planning economics sociology and psychology leaving scope for a fresh holistic overview of how the separate inputs into the housing development process actually interact in practice housing development brings together information on housing production housing provision and the housing environment highlighting the theoretical and policy contexts in which housing development takes place as an integrated process this user friendly volume includes learning objectives indicative educational assignments suggested topics for dissertations and theses priorities for commissioned research annotated guides to further reading a glossary of terms an extensive index and details of relevant websites a selection of maps diagrams tables and photographs are included in support of the ideas discussed
