like the egyptians the kush built pyramids used picture writing and lived along the nile river learn about how the kush built a kingdom in the desert sand what do we know about this civilization today the kingdom of kush is part of the super science facts series that engages readers in grades 5 to 12 with fun science facts and colorful images on every page to support comprehension the series covers physical science life science and social sciences in individual sets the minimal text format 1 700 to 2 000 words per book introduces content vocabulary defined in context and repeated in a glossary this audio edition features professional narration and highlights text as it is read the reader may turn narration on or off while reading the kingdom of kush and the ancient nubian civilization in general are important not only for their achievements but also for what these achievements represent in the abstract the existence of such civilizations challenges many traditional eurocentric views of the world and its history of course ancient egypt is impressive enough on its own but nubia is even further south and further away from european influence and in that sense more african neighboring ethiopia and numerous other locales in africa were home to other civilizations that have seen their share of success too so nubia and its kingdom of kush are not alone in that sense overall africa is a fascinating place to study from the standpoint of scholars from all sorts of backgrounds and sciences after all africa is where mankind originates so its heritage is something that s important for all of humanity to study introduces students in grade 6 to the history and geography of ancient civilizations up through the fall of the roman empire situated in present day northern sudan and southern egypt the ancient nubian kingdom of kush thrived along the nile valley marking an early cradle of civilization this region gave rise to intricate communities engaged in trade and craftsmanship around 2450 to 1450 bc the city state of kerma emerged as a dominant political force reigning over the nile valley between the first and fourth cataracts a territory comparable to egypt recognized by the egyptians as kush kerma engaged in intermittent warfare trade and cultural exchange with egypt over the ensuing centuries during the new kingdom period 1550 1070 bc egypt exerted control over much of nubia but following egypt s decline in the late bronze age collapse the kushites restored their empire in napata modern karima sudan while sharing cultural traits with egypt kush developed its own distinct civilization king kashta peacefully ascended to the throne of upper egypt and his daughter amenirdis became the divine adoratrice of amun in thebes the twenty fifth dynasty led by the kushites took root after piye s invasion of lower egypt in the ninth century bc the kushite monarchs governed egypt for about a century until the assyrian conquest when psamtik i of egypt expelled them in the mid seventh century bc following this rupture the kushite capital shifted to mero known to the greeks as aethiopia from the third century bc to the third century ad northern nubia faced egyptian annexation enduring as the dodekaschoinos in the greco roman world under macedonian and roman rule yesebokheamani reclaimed control sustaining the kingdom of kush as a significant regional power until the fourth century ad internal strife climatic challenges and invasions by the noba people led to its decline the kingdom of aksum subsequently captured and razed mero signaling the kingdom s dissolution into nobatia makuria and alodia recent archaeological discoveries in the late 20th century have unveiled kush as a sophisticated society with its language script thriving trade and industry proficiency in archery and a complex urban structure featuring substantial female participation the term nubia first recorded in egyptian as k3 likely pronounced in middle egyptian denotes the indigenous people who founded kush s empire it has an ethnic connotation evident in names like king kashta kush as a geographical term referred to the area south of the first cataract and was also the residence of the 25th dynasty monarchs
