in the critical decade between the sino japanese and russo japanese wars perhaps as many as 10 000 chinese students converged on tokyo in what was the first large study abroad movement anywhere in the world following china s defeat by japan in 1895 sending young chinese to japan for schooling seemed wise policy to leaders in both countries to reform minded pragmatists at the helm of ch ing government study in japan meant access to modern ideas and technology that would strengthen the state and their own power to japan s leaders training thousands of young chinese fit their objective of creating a strong china under japanese tutelage together the two countries could form an asian bulwark against the encroachments of the west but this blueprint for study abroad failed to consider what the students own goals might be for a modernizing china for the chinese students exposure to an economically stronger intellectually more open japan inspired visions of a new china free of ch ing mismanagement more broadly representative politically and capable of holding back imperialism in any form western or japanese increasingly alienated from the ch ing state japan educated activists boldly proclaimed their anti authoritarian views and were a key force in the rising tide of dissidence propelling china to revolution in 1911 among the topics the author considers are the emergence of official and popular support for study in japan the socio economic background of the students their psychological interaction with the japanese case studies of student protest movements and the nature of students intellectual and political concerns in developing a new political outlook the students grappled with many of the issues confronting china nearly a century later how far to open the door to western influence how to relate to an economically strong japan how much political reform should accompany technological and economic change and above all how to become modern and remain distinctively chinese book jacket title summary field provided by blackwell north america inc all rights reserved this book examines chinese tertiary students experiences of learning english in sino australian programs in china using an institutional ethnography the book examines one well established sino australian program based at a chinese university the book explores the ways that participant students used the chinese words tropes and their meanings to describe their english learning experiences with both local chinese and foreign english teachers this book introduces an innovative theoretical framework representation theory with a multilingual perspective to analyse how chinese students everyday experiences are constructed and mediated through language discourse and identity this framework also highlights graphic examples of how concepts are created in both chinese and english and thus serves as a powerful tool for deconstructing dichotomies between china and the west the aim of this book is then two fold to show how a novel theoretical lens can help us to develop more nuanced understandings of chinese students and to propose a new methodological and theoretical framework through which one can challenge the monolingual subjectivity and parochial views of both chinese and western conceptions there has been an increase over the past decade in the number of chinese students studying in western higher education institutions with figures expected to increase over the next 10 years however this has proved particularly challenging for the lecturers in these institutions regarding how best to engage and teach this particularly unique student group the chinese student presents these challenges due to the many cultural and language differences that can be identified as well as to the western teachers perception of how these students like to be taught this book disputes such myths and provide a useful guide on what those challenges are offering practical guidance on how to overcome them the book firstly identifies and defines the chinese student studying for a degree in western universities and institutions before going on to examine and explore the cultural differences by discussing issues around teaching and learning a chapter focusing specifically on language breaks down the differences in detail with discussions around tonal language and its impact on the students understanding further chapters discuss attitudes to learning staff support for teaching this particular group and finally some practical suggestions on how best to engage the student and enable them to achieve
