from tabloid exposes of child prostitution to the grisly tales of Jack the Ripper narratives of sexual danger pulsed through Victorian London expertly blending social history and cultural criticism Judith Walkowitz shows how these narratives reveal the complex dramas of power politics and sexuality that were being played out in late nineteenth century Britain and how they influenced the language of politics journalism and fiction Victorian London was a world where long standing traditions of class and gender were challenged by a range of public spectacles mass media scandals new commercial spaces and a proliferation of new sexual categories and identities in the midst of this changing culture women of many classes challenged the traditional privileges of elite males and asserted their presence in the public domain an important catalyst in this conflict argues Walkowitz was with that widely read 1885 article about child prostitution capitalizing on the uproar caused by the piece and the volatile political climate of the time women spoke of sexual danger articulating their own grievances against men inserting themselves into the public discussion of sex to an unprecedented extent and gaining new entree to public spaces and journalistic practices the ultimate manifestation of class anxiety and gender antagonism came in 1888 with the tabloid tales of Jack the Ripper in between there were quotidian stories of sexual possibility and urban adventure and Walkowitz examines them all showing how women were not simply figures in the imaginary landscape of male spectators but also central actors in the stories of metropolitan life that reverberated in courtrooms learned journals drawing rooms street corners and in the letters columns of the daily press a model of cultural history this ambitious book will stimulate and enlighten readers across a broad range of interests

a groundbreaking feminist text that frames our obsession with true crime as a form of sexual terror in 1992 three teenage girls went missing from the small town of Alcàsser in Valencia Spain while on their way to a nightclub in a case whose strangeness and brutality continues to draw popular speculation decades later feminist theorist Nerea Barjola retraces the high profile search to find them and the media frenzy of the ensuing trial to explore our cultural fascination with the harm done to women's bodies the graphic rehearsal of the details in news and media fuels cautionary tales of sexual danger that induce in women a mental map of places they can and cannot go the activities they dare not do rape is not an individual crime but the expropriation of the female body a threat leveled against a class of potential victims that shifts the burden of staying safe onto their own internalized policing this barjola argues is the frontline for female transgression freedom and resistance offering a feminist take on giorgio agamben's concept of bare life this riveting case study identifies spaces where women cross beyond social limits a house a party a car into a place where danger is all but inevitable where the state of exception turns into the scene of the crime the sexist microphysics of power builds on judith butler's work on performativity michel foucault's thinking on the day to day operations of power and silvia federici's analysis of the witch hunt to propose a paradigm shift in our understanding of the systemic impact of gender violence and of a culture the relishes in its lurid repetition in 2021 the spanish government awarded the book a national distinction for the significance of its research for social transformation a critical exploration of travel animals and shape changing in fin de siècle literature during the 19th century london was a complex vibrant and multi faceted city the first true metropolis as such it contained within it a widely disparate array of worlds and cultures representations of london in literature varied just as widely in the late 1830s london began appearing as a site of literary terror and by the end of the century a large proportion of the important victorian gothic revival novels were set in the city the strange case of dr jekyll and mr hyde the picture of dorian gray the three impostors the beetle dracula and many others in darkest london is a full length study of the victorian urban gothic a pervasive mode that appears not only in straightforward novels of terror like those mentioned above but also in the works of mainstream authors such as charles dickens and in the journalism and travel literature of the time in this volume author jamieson ridenhour looks beyond broad considerations of the gothic as a historical mode to explore the development of london and the concurrent rise of the urban gothic he also considers very specific aspects of london's representation in these works and draws upon recent and then contemporary theories close readings of relevant texts and cartography to support and expand these ideas this book examines the work of both canonical and non canonical authors including dickens bram stoker robert louis stevenson g w m reynolds richard marsh arthur machen marie belloc lowndes and oscar wilde placing the conventions of the gothic form in their proper historical context in darkest london will appeal to scholars and students interested in an in depth survey of the urban gothic updated to reflect the most current thinking on urban studies the blackwell city reader second edition features a comprehensive selection of multidisciplinary readings relating to the analysis and experience of global cities includes new sections of materialities and mobilities to capture the most recent debates the most international reader of its kind including extensive coverage of urban issues in asia china and india combines theoretical approaches with a wide range of geographical case studies organized to be used as a stand alone text or alongside blackwell's a companion to the city much has been written regarding the new woman in the fin de siècle and the changes women's groups fought so hard to achieve however the social and gender changes demanded by women as the nineteenth century drew to a close necessitated a corresponding change in traditional masculinities redefinition of the male role was not easily negotiated in an era of rampant patriarchy and victorian supremacy the distinct boundaries between male and female social space made this increasingly problematic for both genders some victorian men who had seen the public sphere as exclusively theirs felt both their masculinity and male privilege threatened and were confused by women's challenges and their attempted encroachment into what had previously been perceived as solely male domains while many female authors explored possibilities for the new woman figure as the fin de siècle approached male authors began to consider how masculinities might respond to changing gender dynamics authors such as sir arthur conan doyle and bram stoker amongst others addressed ways in which their male characters could negotiate a quandary of masculinities under threat by alterations to conventional gender spheres while remaining manly in situations which required a rethinking of many of their basic tenets during this time of flux this book examines the opinions of women within both the dominant and reverse discourses and parallels them with ideas surrounding changes in masculinities that began to emerge in male authored texts as such it details an often vociferous negotiation of volatile issues which led to a major upheaval of gender roles in the approach to a new century that demanded changes which were difficult to achieve religious horror and the ecogothic explores the intersections of anglophone christianity and the ecogothic a subgenre that explores the ecocritical in gothic literature film and media acknowledging the impact of christian ideologies upon interpretations of human relationships with the environment the ecogothic in turn interrogates spiritual identity and humanity's darker impulses in relation to ecological systems through a survey of ecogothic texts from the eighteenth century to the present day this book illuminates the ways in which a christianized understanding of hierarchy dominion fear and sublimity shapes reactions to the environment and conceptions of humanity's place therein it interrogates the discourses which inform environmental policy as well as definitions of the human in a rapidly changing world
