This book focuses on the propaganda war between the Syrian government and the opposition movement which excludes the Islamic state and the Kurdish led SDF. Drawing on international relations, psychology and media studies, the book encourages readers to question the dominant discourse on the war. The core of the book outlines the propaganda battles over the main paradigms and narratives that framed the war, exploring the shortcomings of those paradigms and narratives, identifying who won the propaganda war and why, and assessing what impact it had on the military side of the war. In particular, it focuses on the role of cognitive bias amongst primary and secondary sources in determining the outcome of the propaganda war and whether the influence of this propaganda is best explained by effects or limited effects theory. Through explaining the dynamics of the propaganda war, the book encourages readers to critically question the dominant discourse on the war, assisting them in understanding primary and secondary reporting on the war and showing that the impact of the propaganda war is best understood in terms of limited effects theory. The book's main findings are that: i) the opposition won the international propaganda war but failed to win the propaganda war inside Syria; ii) propaganda had relatively little effect on shaping attitudes either inside Syria or internationally; instead, its main effect was to reinforce attitudes that had already been shaped by other factors; and iii) the reality of the war lies between the conflicting paradigms and narratives being promoted by each side.

In this new and important analysis of apostasy al riddah, the author examines fundamental teachings of the Qur'an and the Sunnah of the Prophet as well as historical as opposed to scriptural postulates to uncover the origins of the debate and refute misconceptions. Mainstream media and critics of Islam delight in pointing to the death penalty as evidence of Islam's draconian tenets, moral flaws and flagrant disregard for human rights. This demonstrates a complete misunderstanding of the correct Islamic position. What apostasy signifies in Islam, ignorance of Islamic principles of justice as well as failure to comprehend the manipulation of religion for political purposes.
