a literary history of medicine by the syrian physician ibn abī uṣaybi‘ah d

1270 is the earliest comprehensive history of medicine it contains biographies of over 432 physicians ranging from the ancient greeks to the author s contemporaries describing their training and practice often as court physicians and listing their medical works all this interlaced with poems and anecdotes these volumes present the first complete and annotated translation along with a new edition of the arabic text showing the stages in which the author composed the work introductory essays provide important background the reader will find on these pages an islamic society that worked closely with christians and jews deeply committed to advancing knowledge and applying it to health and wellbeing galenism a rational coherent medical system embracing all health and disease related matters was the dominant medical doctrine in the latin west during the middle ages and the renaissance deriving from the medical and philosophical views of galen 129 c 210 6 as well as from his clinical practice latin galenism had its origins in 12th century salerno and was constructed from the cultural exchanges between the arabic and christian worlds it flourished all over europe following the patterns of expansion of the university system during the subsequent centuries and was a major factor in shaping the healing systems of the christian jewish and muslim communities the subject of a previous volume by professor garcía ballester the present collection deals with a wide array of issues regarding the historical galen and late medieval and renaissance galenism but focuses in particular on the relationship between theory and practice it includes first english versions of two major studies originally published in spanish these ten studies provide a view of the extent to which intellectual and literary life in holland has been influenced by english ideas the book concludes with an overview of anglo dutch cultural transfer from the early seventeenth century to the late nineteenth century concentrating on what between sir thomas browne s stay in leiden in 1633 and l a j burgersdijk s complete translation of shakespeare in the 1880s was transmitted what sea changes occurred during the voyage and in how far these resulted in something rich and strange the emphasis in some of the essays is on intellectual or scholarly contacts with holland mostly on the receiving end but by no means exclusively so in the field of literature proper given the continuing prestige of french letters there lies a special interest in watching the gradually increasing appreciation of english non fiction fiction poetry and drama this was brought about by translations and by the growing familiarity of dutch cultural leaders with the english language itself in spite of long standing aversions to its composition and sound continuing far into the nineteenth century the analysis of translation strategies and adaptations often made to suit the target culture also contributes to the history of translation a branch of translation studies now coming into its own includes the transactions of the american surgical association new york surgical society philadelphia academy of surgery southern surgical association central surgical association and at various times of other similar organizations
