book's stunning photographs encourage the viewer to see Powell's work from different viewpoints highlighting the unique interactions of transparent, opaque and translucent glass and Powell's bold color combinations. Stephen Rolfe Powell, glassmaker, vividly portrays the tension and excitement involved in the artist's nontraditional team approach to working with molten glass.

This volume aims to make Stephen of Pisa and Antioch's work on the celestial sciences accessible to a wider readership providing not just the text but a translation and introduction as well. The edition is based on the only known manuscript of the Liber Mamonis ms. Cambrai Médiathèque d'Agglomération a 930. It is split into two parts: the first provides an extensive introduction to Stephen and his work while the second features the edition and translation, a comprehensive glossary and collection of photographs. Plates are also included.

With the rise of imperialism the centuries-old European tradition of humanist scholarship as the key to understanding the world was jeopardized. Nowhere was this more true than in nineteenth-century Germany. It was there Andrew Zimmerman argues that the battle lines of today's culture wars were first drawn when anthropology challenged humanism as a basis for human scientific knowledge. Drawing on sources ranging from scientific papers and government correspondence to photographs, pamphlets and police reports of freak shows, Zimmerman demonstrates how German imperialism opened the door to antihumanism as Germans interacted more frequently with peoples and objects from far-flung cultures. They were forced to reevaluate not just those peoples but also the construction of German identity itself. Anthropologists successfully argued that their discipline addressed these issues more productively and more accessibly than humanistic studies scholars of anthropology, European and intellectual history, museum studies, the history of science, popular culture and colonial studies will welcome this book.

only pulling her down into the fog that much faster as her thoughts blur she dreams of her life the way it had been the simple joy of her new apartment learning to love the smells and sights of living in the city the friendships formed the quiet echo of people walking by just out of reach as her faces scratches against the rough brick the booze the pills it's not enough to make her forget the heat of his breath as he whispered in her ear it's not enough to keep her from still remembering the feeling of his knee in her back throughout this psychological fiction kara struggles with the shame of her emotions of seeing herself as weak and afraid slipping in and out of consciousness kara relives her past we follow her to the one fateful night all her lies her attempts at hiding the liquor and pills collapse in what becomes a desperate moment kara runs no longer can she pretend she now has no choice but to face the demons she had used to cope the demons she thought she had hidden so well a quiet kind of crazy begs the question of just how dangerous living a lie can be as a society we are beginning to see and talk about the emotional cost of hiding who we are that may be reflected in how we define ourselves what we have done or what has been done to us in kara's case it provides the reader an insight into the torture that living with fear anxiety and post traumatic stress can create kara's story not only appeals to those who are familiar with the struggle of mental anguish but to those who are left behind wondering what happened to the person they love seminar paper from the year 2004 in the subject english language and literature studies literature grade 1 0 university of trier course der englische schauerroman language english abstract stephen king is one of the most published contemporary authors he has written more than 50 novels and movie scripts some of them under the pseudonym of richard bachmann his stories deal with the supernatural with aliens or the abysses of the human mind due to his topics his books are often regarded as trivial literature by many of his readers and also by people who have never read a single one of his books and who only judge him by his name but what these critics seem to miss is the fact that stephen king has adapted many themes and motifs from highly regarded authors of classic gothic fiction such as horace walpole ann radcliffe and bram stoker to mention just a few in each of stephen king's books the reader can identify traces of classic gothic fiction although the topics and settings are normally adapted to modern times stephen king says of himself that most of my stephen king's books have been derivative to some extent bloom p 96 which is not surprising regarding his educational background after studying english at the university of maine stephen king worked as a high school teacher although he did not get too much teaching practice due to the commercial success of his books therefore it is not very surprising that stephen king uses the sources he has become acquainted with during his studies he uses the motifs of gothic novels in different ways and in many of his books in fact he says that what i stephen king try to do is to pour new wine from old bottles bloom p 96 what i would like to do in this term paper is to show some of the gothic motifs stephen king uses in his books and in what way he uses them for this purpose i have chosen two novels from stephen king s earlier working period salem s lot and the shining but before actually beginning the comparison between stephen king s books and classic gothic novels i will give an overview over the characteristic features of gothic writing in order to enable the reader to identify the tradition stephen king s writing stands in
