life writing and the nineteenth century literary market begins from the premise that nineteenth century life writing circulated in a market in material and discursive forms determined substantially by the desires of publishers readers editors printers booksellers and the many other craftsmen and tradesmen who collaborated in transforming first person narrative into a commodified thing studies of nineteenth century life writing have typically focused on the major autobiographers or on the formation of genre or on the ways in which different class gender race and other affiliations shaped particular kinds of exemplary subjectivities the aim of this collection on the other hand is to focus on life writing in terms to of profits and sales contracts and copyright printing and illustration to treat life writing through particular case studies and through attentive analysis of print and material cultures as one commodity among many in the vast and complicated literary market of nineteenth century England

This book is a detailed study of salient examples of Mexican travel writing from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. While scholars have often explored the close relationship between European or North American travel writing and the discourse of imperialism, little has been written on how postcolonial subjects might relate to the genre. This study first traces the development of a travel writing tradition based closely on European imperialist models in mid-nineteenth century Mexico. It then goes on to analyse how the narrative techniques of postmodernism and the political agenda of postcolonialism might combine to help challenge the genre's imperialist tendencies in late twentieth-century works of travel writing, focusing in particular on works by writers Juan Villoro, Héctor Perea and Fernando Solana Olivares.

A collection of essays on the juvenilia of famous authors including Austen, the Brontës, George Eliot and Virginia Woolf.

Since the late twentieth century there has been a strategic campaign to recover the impact of Victorian women writers in the field of English literature. However, with the increased understanding of the importance of interdisciplinarity in the twenty-first century, there is a need to extend this campaign beyond literary studies in order to recognise the role of women writers across the nineteenth century, a time that was intrinsically interdisciplinary in approach to scholarly writing and public intellectual engagement.

Presents literary criticism on the works of nineteenth century writers of all genres, nations and cultures. Critical essays are selected from leading sources including published journals, magazines, books, reviews, diaries, broadsheets, pamphlets and scholarly papers. Criticism includes early views from the author's lifetime as well as later views, including extensive collections of contemporary analysis.
