the interest in scientific cookery particularly in cookery as related to health has manifestly increased in this country within the last decade as is evidenced by the success which has attended every intelligent effort for the establishment of schools for instruction in cookery in various parts of the united states while those in charge of these schools have presented to their pupils excellent opportunities for the acquirement of dexterity in the preparation of toothsome and tempting viands but little attention has been paid to the science of dietetics or what might be termed the hygiene of cookery a little less than ten years ago the sanitarium at battle creek mich established an experimental kitchen and a school of cookery under the supervision of mrs dr kellogg since which time researches in the various lines of cookery and dietetics have been in constant progress in the experimental kitchen and regular sessions of the school of cookery have been held the school has gradually gained in popularity and the demand for instruction has become so great that classes are in session during almost the entire year during this time mrs kellogg has had constant oversight of the cuisine of both the sanitarium and the sanitarium hospital preparing bills of fare for the general and diet tables and supplying constantly new methods and original recipes to meet the changing and growing demands of an institution numbering always from 500 to 700 inmates these large opportunities for observation research and experience have gradually developed a system of cookery the leading features of which are so entirely novel and so much in advance of the methods heretofore in use that it may be justly styled a new system of cookery it is a singular and lamentable fact the evil consequences of which are wide spread that the preparation of food although involving both chemical and physical processes has been less advanced by the results of modern researches and discoveries in chemistry and physics than any other department of human industry iron mining glass making even the homely art of brick making and many of the operations of the farm and the dairy have been advantageously modified by the results of the fruitful labors of modern scientific investigators but the art of cookery is at least a century behind in the march of scientific progress the mistress of the kitchen is still groping her way amid the uncertainties of mediæval methods and daily bemoaning the sad results of the rule of thumb the chemistry of cookery is as little known to the average housewife as were the results of modern chemistry to the old alchemists and the attempt to make wholesome palatable and nourishing food by the methods commonly employed is rarely more successful than that of those misguided alchemists in transmuting lead and copper into silver and gold the new cookery brings order from out the confusion of mixtures and messes often incongruence and incompatible which surrounds the average cook by the elucidation of the principles which govern the operations of the kitchen with the same certainty with which the law of gravity rules the planets

Josephine Lang 1815-80 was one of the most gifted, respected, prolific and widely published song composers of the nineteenth century yet her life and works have remained virtually unknown. Now this carefully researched, compelling and poignant study recognizes the composer for her remarkable accomplishments based on years of study of unpublished letters, musical autographs, reviews and the autobiographical poetry of Lang's husband Reinhold Köstlin. The biographical portions of the book offer a stunning portrait of the composer as a woman and an artist in depth. Musical analyses interwoven with the biography will be illuminating to scholars and to musicians of all skill levels. The analyses reveal Lang's sensitivity to her chosen poetic texts as well as the validity of her claim that her songs were her diary. The authors demonstrate that many of the songs are directly connected to the events of Lang's life. The analyses are illustrated by an abundance of musical examples including a number of complete songs. A companion website featuring 30 songs by Lang recorded by the authors complements the text.

Places the phenomenologies of Merleau-Ponty and Nishida in dialogue and uncovers a demand for a motor-perceptual form of faith in both philosophers' meditations on artistic expression. In Merleau-Ponty and Nishida, Adam Loughnane initiates a fascinating new dialogue between two of the twentieth century's most important phenomenologists of the eastern and western philosophical worlds. Throughout the book, the reader is guided among the intricacies and innovations of Merleau-Ponty's and Nishida's ontological approaches to artistic expression with a focused look at a rarely explored connection between faith and negation in their philosophies. Exploring the intertwining of these concepts in their broader ontologies invokes a reappraisal of the ambiguous status of religion and art in the writings of both thinkers. Measuring these ambiguities, the ontologies of flesh and Bashō are read in depth alongside great artworks and the motor-perceptual practices of seminal landscape artists such as Cézanne, Sesshō Taiga and Hasegawa, as well as other major figures of European, Chinese and Japanese art history. Loughnane studies these artists' bodily practices focusing on the intimate relations realized with the landscapes they paint and illuminating a valence of their expressive disciplines as a motor-perceptual form of faith. Merleau-Ponty and Nishida is an exciting intercultural reading expanding two philosophers' projects toward new horizons of research, revealing incitements in their writings that challenge unambiguous distinctions between art and philosophy. Faith and ultimately philosophy East and West. Loughnane illuminates the ambiguous chiasmic and dynamic relationality between the body and the world, providing concrete examples from art history East and West. He not only skillfully explains Nishida's and Merleau-Ponty's ontological notions but also puts their philosophy to the test of art works, proving that their thinking reveals an important truth of art. Takeshi Kimoto, Chukyo University.

At its center, Duende de Burque is a love letter to Albuquerque and its surroundings: the Sandia Mountains, the Rio Grande Bosque, and all the people whose spirits fill these spaces. It is an exploration of one poet's search for duende, that elusive state of spontaneous expression and authenticity. With a debut in local poetry slam, Manuel González has honed his craft on the stage and on the page for the past twenty years. He has represented Burque several times on the national slam scene, hosted countless slams for people of all ages, and worked to help adults and youths discover the power of self-expression. In this collection, González writes about his beginnings as a poet and his work as the third Albuquerque poet laureate. He writes about what inspires him and how he works to inspire others, and to craft poems that do the same. In his core is Burque: his heart, his sangre, and the home of his ancestors
