analyzing the ideology and rhetoric around race in cuba and south florida during the early years of the cuban revolution devyn spence benson argues that ideas stereotypes and discriminatory practices relating to racial difference persisted despite major efforts by the cuban state to generate social equality drawing on cuban and u s archival materials and face to face interviews benson examines 1960s government programs and campaigns against discrimination showing how such programs frequently negated their efforts by reproducing racist images and idioms in revolutionary propaganda cartoons and school materials building on nineteenth century discourses that imagined cuba as a raceless space revolutionary leaders embraced a narrow definition of blackness often seeming to suggest that afro cubans had to discard their blackness to join the revolution this was and remains a false dichotomy for many cubans of color benson demonstrates while some afro cubans agreed with the revolution's sentiments about racial transcendence not blacks not whites only cubans others found ways
