fostering mutual understanding by viewing religion from an outsider perspective depending on how one defines religion there are at least thousands of religions in the world given such religious diversity how can any one religion claim to know the truth nothing proposed so far has helped us settle which of these religions if any are true until now author john w loftus a former minister turned atheist argues we would all be better off if we viewed any religion including our own from the informed skepticism of an outsider a nonbeliever for this reason he has devised the outsider test for faith he describes it as a variation on the golden rule do unto your own faith what you do to other faiths essentially this means applying the same skepticism to our own beliefs as we do to the beliefs of other faiths loftus notes that research from psychology anthropology sociology and neuroscience goes a long way toward explaining why the human race has produced so many belief systems why religion is culturally dependent and how religion evolved in the first place it's important that people understand these findings to escape the dangerous delusion that any one religion represents the only truth at a time when the vast diversity of human belief systems is accessible to all the outsider test for faith offers a rational means for fostering mutual understanding
