in these several pieces i have worked to trace out possible interfaces between specific scripture references and matters at the forefront of our common social life it is my hunch that almost without fail such an interface creates a very different angle of vision for any element of our common social life because it situates such a topic in the context of the biblical narrative that is occupied by the holy agency of god such an alternative angle of vision helps to defamiliarize us from our usual discernment according to the master narrative of democratic capitalism that is most widely shared across the spectrum of conservatives and progressives because our common angle of vision shared by progressives and conservatives has a very low ceiling of human ultimacy we all of us easily come to think that our particular reading of social reality is absolute and beyond question even if dominated by a tacit ideology it is my bet that an interface with biblical testimony can and will deabsolutize our excessive certitude and permit us to look again at the social facts that are in front of us i do not think and do not suggest that such interfaces with scripture are inevitable they are rather suggestive impressionistic and fleeting the kind of linkage that is available in the matrix of faith that is not fixed on certitude parenting in england is the first study of the world of parenting in late georgian england the author joanne bailey traces ideas about parenthood in a christian society that was responding to new cultural trends of sensibility romanticism and domesticity along with enlightenment ideas about childhood and self all these shaped how people from the poor to the genteel thought about themselves as parents and remembered their own parents with meticulous attention to detail bailey illuminates the range of intense emotions provoked by parenthood by investigating a rich array of sources from memoirs and correspondence to advice literature fiction and court records to prints engravings and ballads parenting was also a profoundly embodied experience and the book captures the effort labour and hard work it entailed such parental investment meant that the experience was fundamental to the forging of national familial and personal identities it also needed more than two parents and this book uncovers the hitherto hidden world of shared parenting at all levels of society household and kinship ties were drawn upon to lighten the labours of parenting by revealing these emotional and material parental worlds what emerges is the centrality of parenthood to mental and physical well being reputation public and personal identities and to transmitting prized values across generations yet being a parent was a contingent experience adapting from hour to hour year to year and child to child it was at once precarious as children and parents succumbed to fatal diseases and accidents yet it was also enduring because parent child relationships were not ended by death lost children and parents lived on in memory writer such as Dickens it should not come as a surprise that Dickens was not very satisfied with the period he lived in or with people around him the fact that he had already sold the lease on his London house and moved to the swamp north Kent marshes before he started to write the novel Great Expectations may come as a proof for this statement Dickens was forty eight then and he could not stand pollution and bad public health or the famous London fog of which he wrote so much in his novels Bleak House and Our Mutual Friend there is however always a huge diversion between rural and urban in Dickens novels especially in Great Expectations because of this huge distinction Tristan Siple in her work The Revenge of Swamp Thing Wetlands Industrial Capitalism and the Ecological Contradiction of Great Expectations divides Dickens in the two groups pastoral Dickens and gritty urban Dickens in Great Expectations Marsh the place where the main protagonist Pip lives the marsh is without a doubt showed as a place of wrongdoings criminality and everything bad
