cultural identity in transition analyses the challenges that globalisation and modernisation have brought to cultural identity in recent years this collection of articles highlights some of the central theoretical ideas and models currently used in the analysis of cultural identity in the social and cultural sciences while the book's main regional focus is on northern Europe this is complemented by several case studies addressing issues of cultural identity in indigenous and ethnic communities in literary and artistic expression and in terms of national politics around the world the book discusses in detail the questions like what is at stake in the global culture industry in terms of cultural identity how do the internet and information technology in general empower local communities what kinds of political struggles and conflicts can be associated with the processes of cultural identity cultural identities are in transition but in what direction are they moving cultural identity in transition will be essential reading for university students and researchers in sociology anthropology and cultural and literary studies as people throughout the world react to globalization and revert to nationalism they are proclaiming distinct cultural identities for themselves cultural identity seems to offer a defensive wall against the homogenizing effects of globalization and a framework for nurturing and protecting cultural differences in this short and provocative book François Jullien argues that this emphasis on cultural identity is a mistake cultures exist in relation to one another and they are constantly mutating and transforming themselves there is no cultural identity there are only what Jullien calls resources resources are created in a certain space they are available to all and belong to no one they are not exclusive like the values to which we proclaim loyalty instead we deploy them or not activate them or let them fall by the wayside and each of us as individuals is responsible for these choices this conceptual shift requires us to redefine three key terms the universal the uniform and the common equipped with these concepts we can rethink the dialogue between cultures in a way that avoids what Jullien sees as the false debate about identity and difference this powerful critique of the modern shibboleth of cultural identity will appeal to anyone interested in the great social and political questions of our time in this book i attempt to show how colonial and postcolonial political forces have endeavoured to reconstruct the national identity of morocco on the basis of cultural representations and ideological constructions closely related to nationalist and ethnolinguistic trends i discuss how the issue of language is at the centre of the current cultural and political debates in morocco the present book is an investigation of the ramifications of multilingualism for language choice patterns and attitudes among moroccans more importantly the book assesses the roles played by linguistic and cultural factors in the development and evolution of moroccan society it also focuses on the impact of multilingualism on cultural authenticity and national identity having been involved in research on language and culture for many years i am particularly interested in linguistic and cultural assimilation or alienation and under what conditions it takes place especially today that more and more moroccans speak french and are influenced by western social behaviour more than ever before in the process i provide the reader with an updated description of the different facets of language use language maintenance and shift and language attitudes focusing on the linguistic situation whose analysis is often blurred by emotional reactions ideological discourses political biases simplistic assessments and ethnolinguistic identities seminar paper from the year 2007 in the subject cultural studies empiric cultural studies grade 2 0 ruhr university of bochum european culture economy course ma ecue language english abstract end of the 20th century has witnessed sudden emergence of identity culture more and more people across the globe are thinking about their identity and origin collective identity is gaining more and more importance noted scholar samuel huntington writes in his celebrated work kampf der kulturen völker und nationen versuchen heute die elementarste frage zu beantworten vor der menschen stehen können wer sind wir identifying with others in various different ways can be extremely important for living in postmodern society in today s postmodern times identities are ever changing overlapping and they are also situation specific this paper intends to explore the possibility of describing cultural identity emerging in contemporary postmodern world i begin with conceptualization of the term culture the main purpose of this work is to deal with cultural identity in postmodern age and hence i have taken liberty to use the words postmodern postmodernity and postmodernism synonymously the term postmodern consists of a whole plethora of interpretations and it derives its origin from modernism hence i start with description of modernism in chapter two thereafter comparative analysis of modernism and postmodernism is presented postmodern age is an age of dilemmas this era has given momentum to identity culture as mentioned earlier more and more people are worried about their identities and various discourses at various levels are taking place but simultaneously cultural identity in this era is getting fragmented hence discussion is divided into two parts namely identity culture and cultural identity in postmodern times i have deliberately restricted my sphere to philosophical and cultural fields language culture identity and citizenship in college classrooms and communities examines what takes place in writing classrooms beyond academic analytical and argumentative writing to include forms that engage students in navigating the civic political social and cultural spheres they inhabit it presents a conceptual framework for imagining how writing instructors can institute campus wide initiatives such as writing across communities that attempt to connect the classroom and the campus to the students various communities of belonging especially students who have been historically underserved this framework reflects an emerging perspective writing across difference that challenges the argument that the best writing instructors can do is develop the skills and knowledge students need to make a successful transition from their home discourses to academic discourses instead the value inherent in the full repertoire of linguistic cultural and semiotic resources students use in their varied communities of belonging needs to be acknowledged and students need to be encouraged to call on these to the fullest extent possible in the course of learning what they are being taught in the writing classroom pedagogically this book provides educators with the rhetorical discursive and literacy tools needed to implement this approach the book is easy to use and its layout demonstrates some skill in constructing volumes that work as study guides and reference tools the merit of this book goes well beyond its suitability for course applications contemporary ideas on identity provide new meanings for an old concept multilingual and multicultural in recent years identity and difference have been the focus of key debates in cultural studies this broad ranging book examines the challenge of these debates and outlines their applications to central questions of gender sexuality embodiment health race and nation the text renders accessible some of the most exciting and controversial issues in recent cultural studies it this volume contains conference papers from the 3rd north atlantic studies conference the papers seem to indicate a connection between progressive centralisation corresponding with increased homogeneity of culture at the national level and a concomitant relative heterogenisation of peripheral regions and minority culture in political terms expressed through the assertion of difference of local regional ethnic and other identities this heterogenisation may be defined in cultural terms as differentiation or in structural terms as expressing relative distancing from the centres of power the factors giving form and content to these movements seem to reflect institutional arrangements made by the centres in an effort to integrate peripheral communities in other words expressions of localism are linked to the manner and structure of integration in the social system or society in question this puts focus on public institutions as integrating mechanisms and possible arenas of struggle for control paraphrasing jenkins this volume comparing northern irish and welsh nationalism the character of nationalist movements is inextricably bound up with the processes of modern state formation the focus on structures and relations of incorporation or integration is a general theme uniting the present collection of articles although this observation alone does not do justice to the breadth of perspectives taken
