the book provides a genealogy of dialectical materialism by tracing the development of marxist ideas from their origins in german philosophical thought to the ideology of the social democratic groups in russia in the 1890s from which lenin and the revolutionary generation emerged it reconstructs marx's original conceptions and examines the modifications that were made to them by himself and by his russian followers which eventually gave rise to the doctrine of dialectical materialism first expounded by plekhanov

the author argues that a reconstruction of scientific laws should give an account of laws relating phenomena to underlying mechanisms generating them as well as of laws relating this mechanism to its inherent capacities while contemporary philosophy of science deals only with the former the author provides the concept for the reconstruction of scientific laws where the knowledge of the phenomena enables one to grasp the quantity of their cause he then provides the concepts for scientific laws dealing with the relation of the quantity and quality of the cause underlying phenomena to the quality and quantity of its capacities finally he provides concepts for scientific laws expressing how a certain cause due to the quantity and quality of its capacities generates the quantitative and qualitative determinations of its manifestations the book is intended for philosophers of science and philosophers of social science as well as for natural and social scientists
