most people in our country become fascinated by stories reported by favorite newscasters walter cronkite and ed murrow being two prime examples that had wide audiences who accepted their comments and reported their news and views as gospel chicago on the other hand began a love affair with a street reporter named studs terkel 1912 2008 whose 45 year career of recording interviews with a wide spectrum of street people and common folk who were asked for their views on what they liked hated living circumstances and an abundance of topics that they tolerated but despised racial views being a prime topic of comments the people terkel sought out were the homeless streetwalkers prostitutes cops firemen celebrities doctors teachers businessmen and a full spectrum of people in the building trades usually those he chose to interview were more than pleased to be asked for their comments and would pour out stories that made terkels hour long radio broadcasts on chicagos wfmts a fascinating listening experience as if the person being interviewed hadnt bared enough of his her soul to the reporter terkel would wait until their story was finished before then asking them and then what happened the shock of this quest invariably resulted with additional startling stories coming out of the mouths of the victims studs had chosen to interview in fact these comments asked the people he interviewed after the first part of the story they rendered revealed secrets and things that the person had never mentioned to anybody they were like icing added to a cake and turned out to be the fascination that brought the reporter abundant listeners as well as rendering studs terkel just about every book award and citation ever given to a single person in the united states studs terkel interviews gained him the top echelon of reporters during the 45 years that his radio and then television shows were in demand by chigagoans from 1952 1997 his variety of stories was the catalyst that prompted victor kelley to publish his own version of events that fascinated readers of his eight books the physical principles of swimming and flying in animals are intriguingly different from those of ships and airplanes the study of animal locomotion therefore holds a special place not only at the frontiers of pure fluid dynamics research but also in the applied field of biomimetics which aims to emulate salient aspects of the performance and function of living organisms for example fluid dynamic loads are so significant for swimming fish that they are expected to have developed efficient flow control procedures through the evolutionary process of adaptation by natural selection which might in turn be applied to the design of robotic swimmers and yet sharply contrasting views as to the energetic efficiency of oscillatory propulsion especially for marine animals demand a careful assessment of the forces and energy expended at realistic reynolds numbers for this and many other research questions an experimental approach is often the most appropriate methodology this holds as much for flying animals as it does for swimming ones and similar experimental challenges apply studying tethered as opposed to free locomotion or studying the flow around robotic models as opposed to real animals this book provides a wide ranging snapshot of the state of the art in experimental research on the physics of swimming and flying animals the resulting picture reflects not only upon the questions that are of interest in current pure and applied research but also upon the experimental techniques that are available to answer them
