the surprising story of the relationship between experimental poetry and literary studies in the academic avant garde kimberly quigogue andrews makes a provocative case for the radical poetic possibilities of the work of literary scholarship and lays out a foundational theory of literary production in the context of the university in her examination of the cross pollination between the analytic humanities and the craft of poetry writing andrews tells a bold story about some of today's most innovative literary works this pathbreaking intervention into contemporary american literature and higher education demonstrates that experimental poetry not only reflects nuanced concern about creative writing as a discipline but also uses the critical techniques of scholarship as a cornerstone of poetic practice structured around the concepts of academic labor such as teaching and methodological work such as theorizing the book traces these practices in the works of authors ranging from claudia rankine to john ashbery providing fresh readings of some of our era's most celebrated and difficult poets

i write fiction do you ever wish you could go back in time in your delorean if you wish with the ability to not repeat the bad but live the good again it's what i write to me a book that makes you think and think too hard decreases the fun of thinking to me when you read my books i just want you to let your mind go causing a slant of a smile or an eruption of giggles and you don't need to think about that that's more of a spontaneous type of thing if you want to think about reading a book that will make you think i'll loan you my old nursing school books for centuries critics poets poet scholars and philosophers have either openly proclaimed or tacitly assumed the long poem as the highest expression of literary ambition and excellence rethinking the north american long poem focuses on the north american variant of this notorious form notorious because of its often forbidding and difficult character particularly with respect to the dialectics of content and form aesthetics and politics matter and genre in nine essays and a contextual introduction the editors and contributors scrutinize seminal long poems by north american writers including walt whitman's song of myself ezra pound's the cantos muriel rukeyser's the book of the dead and charles olson's the maximus poems they also explore recent efforts that have redefined or reopened the case of the long poem including rachel blau duplessis s drafts m nourbese philip s zong and claudia rankine s citizen taking the categories of form matter and experiment as frames of conceptual reference the book examines the ways in which material and immaterial aspects of literary practice and the philosophically and politically inscribed duality of experience and experiment are negotiated in and by north american long poems from the nineteenth century to the present in on the inconvenience of other people lauren berlant continues to explore our affective engagement with the world berlant focuses on the encounter with and the desire for the bother of other people and objects showing that to be driven toward attachment is to desire to be inconvenienced drawing on a range of sources including last tango in paris ralph waldo emerson claudia rankine christopher isherwood bhanu kapil the occupy movement and resistance to anti black state violence berlant poses inconvenience as an affective relation and considers how we might loosen our attachments in ways that allow us to build new forms of life collecting strategies for breaking apart a world in need of disturbing the book s experiments in thought and writing cement berlant s status as one of the most inventive and influential thinkers of our time american hybrid poetics explores the ways in which hybrid poetics a playful mixing of disparate formal and aesthetic strategies have been the driving force in the work of a historically and culturally diverse group of women poets who are part of a robust tradition in contesting the dominant cultural order amy moorman robbins examines the ways in which five poets gertrude stein laura mullen alice notley harryette mullen and claudia rankine use hybridity as an implicitly political strategy to interrupt mainstream american language literary genres and visual culture and expose the ways in which mass culture in the twentieth and twenty first centuries has had a powerfully standardizing impact on the collective american imagination by forcing encounters between incompatible traditions consumer culture with the avant garde low culture forms with experimental poetics prose poetry with linguistic subversiveness these poets bring together radically competing ideologies and highlight their implications for lived experience robbins argues that it is precisely because these poets have mixed forms that their work has gone largely unnoticed by leading members and critics in experimental poetry circles
