The Boundaries of Genre Gary Saul Morson
The Boundaries of Genre Gary Saul Morson

using dostoevsky s most radical experiment in literary form as a springboard gary saul morson examines a number of key topics in contemporary literary theory including the nature of literary genres and their relation to interpretation he convincingly argues that genre is not a property of texts alone but arises from the interaction between texts and readers observing that changing conventions of interpretation and classifciation may alter the perception of particular works morson considers a number of problematic texts that have been read according to two contradictory sets of conventions boundary works and a futher group of texts threshold works such as dostoevsky s diary of a writer that were evidently designed by their authors to exploit this kind of hermeneutic ambivalence morson explores the nature of the literary utopia and its parodic form the anti utopia and returning to dostoevsky s diary as his example a third form which exists as a sort of open dialogue of utopia and anti utopia
