this clinical reference provides the latest knowledge on culturally sensitive practice with more than 40 different ethnic groups and demonstrates how to weave cultural information into assessment and

intervention

this widely used clinical resource and text was among the first to demonstrate the crucial significance of a family's cultural system in therapeutic work chapters are designed to enhance the cultural competence of clinicians working with members of over 40 different ethnic groups in the united states including families of european latino asian african middle eastern and native american heritage ethnic profiles and case studies are presented not as definitive or stereotypical descriptions but rather as informative frameworks for equipping practitioners with a sense of the cultural issues they may encounter in practice in race and family a structural approach author roberta l coles looks at ethnic minority families in a novel way through a structural lens unlike many texts on race and family this book offers an approach that illustrates overarching structural factors affecting all families as opposed to examining each ethnicity in isolation from one another by focusing on various structural factors such as demographic economic and historical aspects this book analyzes various family trends in a cross cutting manner to exemplify the similarities and distinctions among all racial and ethnic groups pleck examines changes in the way americans celebrate holidays like christmas or birthdays this book focuses on the way the family economy is being shaped both by changes in living arrangements and in intergenerational financial flows it addresses issues of variations in the processes in the united states particularly differences among ethnic racial and religious communities this is the ebook of the printed book and may not include any media website access codes or print supplements that may come packaged with the bound book a mosaic of ethnic groups reflecting the social and political dynamics in the united states this edited volume offers an inclusive look at multicultural diversity in the u s with extensive coverage of the family life styles traditions and values of seventeen american ethnic groups providing unique and personal insights each chapter is written by a contributing author representing a particular ethnic group and is structured in a similar pattern covering the historical background key ethnic cultural components traditional and current ethnic family characteristics and changes and adaptations to the ethnic family and culture the book is suitable for undergraduate courses in sociology of the family sociology of minority groups social work with minority groups and race and ethnicity learning goals upon completing this book readers should be able to have a better understanding at the multicultural diversity of families in the united states have a deeper understanding of family life styles traditions and values of a wide range of ethnic families in america note mysearchlab does not come automatically packaged with this text to purchase mysearchlab please visit mysearchlab.com or you can purchase a valuepack of the text mysearchlab with etext at no additional cost valuepack isbn 10 0205863558 valuepack isbn 13 9780205863556 this text provides readers with the critical link between theory and practice illustrating how to actually do family therapy it is a nuts and bolts primer that takes students step by step through the process of conducting family therapy sessions the book starts with the initial session and finishes with the terminating session covering assessment diagnosis skills and techniques needed throughout each stage the case of the martin family a blended family is followed throughout the treatment process families exist in every human society and in every society they fulfill important human needs and goals including but not limited to socialization reproduction and childrearing and the provision of social support despite the important role that family plays in human life there is little research examining how adults living in contemporary u s society understand the concept of family thus the primary goal of this study was to explore adults beliefs about what constitutes family a secondary goal was to examine whether those beliefs differ as a function of gender and ethnicity an ethnically diverse community sample of 901 adults 477 women 424 men mean age 26 0 years indicated the extent to which they believed that 12 different relational groupings e g husband and wife and their biological children two best friends a single person and her or his pet represented a family ratings were made using 9 point likert type scales anchored by 1 definitely not a family and 9 definitely a family across participants the most highly rated grouping was a heterosexual married couple with biological children in fact groupings that included children biological or adopted received higher ratings than all other groupings interestingly even the two lowest rated groupings two best friends and a single person and her or his pet were still rated as only slightly below average with respect to being a family gender differences were found for example both men and women gave equally high family ratings to a husband and wife and their biological children an unmarried man and woman and their biological children and to an unmarried man and woman living together as a couple however women gave higher family ratings than did men to all other relational groupings although a few ethnic differences were found the pattern of ratings was identical across ethnic groups these results suggest that most adults regardless of gender and ethnicity share fairly similar understandings of what constitutes family these results also illustrate that the majority of people accept a fairly wide variety of forms of family the second edition of race and family maintains the book's distinctive feature introducing students to key concepts through a structural lens while featuring new material throughout race and family focuses on structural factors impacting all families such as demographic economic and historic trends which illuminate the similarities and distinctions among and within racial and ethnic groups after introductions to the study of race ethnicity and the family the book explores various issues such as family structure divorce non marital births gender roles racial identity formation intergenerational roles grandparenting care of elders and more the book offers specific chapters on racial ethnic groups including african american asian american latino american middle eastern american and native american while also discussing white families multiracial families the acculturation process and more key updates to the second edition include recent census and survey data a new chapter on middle eastern americans new material on multiracial and multicultural families updated resources and more the second edition of race and family is a comprehensive introduction to race and family through a distinctive structural lens the book provides structural factors cross cultural perspectives and historical overviews that students can use to analyze the whys and ways of family across races and ethnicities a complimentary test bank is available to adopters as a word document or via the free program respondus this text provides beginning students with the knowledge and skills necessary for family social work not a family therapy text it is intended for students who will work with families but who will not necessarily undertake advanced training in family therapy chapters 1 and 2 present a philosophical perspective and provide an understanding of family functions chapters 3 and 4 treat family assessment and chapters 5 through 10 lead students through the actual process of working with families the concluding chapters discuss gender and culturally sensitive practice and cover special situations that family social workers may encounter in working with children and adults
