this book offers in depth analysis of the foundations of and justifications for application of the unidroit principles of international commercial contracts as the governing law to be recognized by arbitral tribunals and domestic courts international commercial contracts in the context of increasing globalization of the national markets have posed some of the most difficult questions of the legal theory as developed since the emergence of nation states those are whether it is possible or desirable to allow international commercial contracts to be governed by the law merchant or in its medieval name lex mercatoria a body of rules which has not been derived from the will of sovereign states but mainly from transnational trade usages and practices and to what extent those rules should govern transnational transactions the traditional approach of legal positivism to the questions maintains that law governing contracts containing a foreign element should be a national law which will be determined according to choice of law rules however the particularities of cross border trade yield unsatisfactory results when the rules essentially designed for the settlement of domestic disputes or national laws pertaining to international economic relations but developed under the influence of a certain legal tradition are tried to be applied new solutions are needed to overcome the special problems of international trade between merchants from different legal systems in that regard while the international commercial arbitration which has been freed from the constraints of the domestic laws is an important step the courts generally applying the principle of party autonomy which allows parties to designate the law that will apply to their transactions have proved insufficient due to the positivistic influence on the conflict of laws rules of most countries which has limited parties choice of law to the national substantive laws the problems created by those inconsistencies and divergences have been felt more strongly in the european community which constitutes an internal market by integrating the national markets of member states into a single one the present paper is an attempt to search for answers to those questions with a special emphasis on the situation in the European community on the basis of the idea that law as a servant of social need must take account of the far reaching and dramatic socio economic changes

force majeure and hardship are commonly invoked in international trade when unforeseen events occur making performance impossible or impracticable most national legislators provide rules to deal with these issues but the specific solutions adopted in domestic laws vary substantially from one country to another in recent years the growing complexity of trade in a globalized world has greatly increased the number of situations where a party can invoke force majeure or hardship parties need to be able to analyse the nature and characteristics of force majeure and hardship and look for contractual clauses which can regulate these issues in conformity with their needs written by international practitioners this dossier explores the evolution of the rules on hardship the ICC clause on hardship and the perspectives of contract adaptation by arbitrators the section on force majeure includes an overview of recent arbitral case law impediment beyond sphere of control and risk of the obligor foreseeability causation notice requirement analysis of the ICC 2003 force majeure clause and an update on its revision two other important themes are included the relationship between force majeure and applicable law general principles of law and trade usages as well as the impact of economic sanctions since fall 2006 a new revised edition of UNIDROIT principles in practice featuring approximately 120 130 cases the UNIDROIT principles of international commercial contracts published in 1994 were an entirely new approach to international contract law prepared by a group of eminent experts from around the world as a restatement of international commercial contract law the principles are not a binding instrument but are referred to in many legal matters they are widely recognized now as a balanced set of rules designed for use throughout the world irrespective of the legal traditions and the economic and political conditions of the countries in which they are applied the book verifies the impact of national law and transnational rules on international contracts particularly those with an arbitration clause with the growth of cross border business the rather important but complex and controversial topic of interpretation and gap filling in international commercial contracts receives more and more attention international legal instruments such as ciscg unidroit principles pecl and dcfr provide rules in order to interpret international commercial contracts in a uniform way however while these instruments may bring together already existing national concepts they must of course be understood beyond the domestic concepts and approaches as such this book is an autonomous comparison across the above mentioned international legal instruments with a focus on the rules on interpretation and gap filling that provides the necessary theoretical background and case law to understand the rules in practice interpretation and gap filling in international commercial contracts examines the uniform and harmonised set of rules in their own right without comparison to national laws but in their own unique setting of international commercial contracts it is a practical user guide for both scholars and practitioners dr ayse nihan karadayi is a postdoctoral researcher on international contract law at the university of antwerp belgium with the aim of creating an autonomous regime for the interpretation and application of the contract boilerplate clauses are often inserted into international commercial contracts without negotiations or regard for their legal effects the assumption that a sufficiently detailed and clear language will ensure that the legal effects of the contract will only be based on the contract as opposed to the applicable law was originally encouraged by english courts and today most international contracts have these clauses irrespective of the governing law this collection of essays demonstrates that this assumption is not fully applicable under systems of civil law because these systems are based on principles such as good faith and loyalty which contradict this approach
