reading the title of rushdie's short story cycle East West a very important question arises in the reader's mind: does rushdie use the comma in between the title to show the binary division of the orient and occident or does he want to make a bridge between east and west? Homeless is where the art is 162. However, after in-depth research on this book, it becomes clear that rushdie goes even further than this bridging device. He not only tries to connect or mediate both the east and west but, as a traveller and migrant himself, he pokes fun at the traditional notions of orient and occident, employing a vast range of styles, genres, structures and techniques, finally deconstructing the binary division between east and west. In doing so, he subverts the reader's traditional assumptions about the orient and occident and clarifies that in today's reality, the east and west cannot be described in such a simplistic way anymore. In Imaginary Homelands, rushdie writes that literature is of all the arts the one best suited to challenging absolutes of all kinds (Beck 356). This is precisely what happens in his short story cycle East West: nothing is sacred any longer. Hence, most of the stories in East West can be regarded as examinations to provoke and deconstruct the inviolable of eastern and western culture (Beck 360). To summarise, rushdie mocks absolutist concepts of the oriental and occidental systems by criticizing and deconstructing traditional notions. He points out that within the global village, the east and west are closely interrelated and cannot be regarded as opposites. Rushdie goes far beyond the familiar row about the binary division of the orient and occident. Although the short stories in East West on the one hand embrace this deconstructive design and seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies, Literature Grade 1.0, University of Stuttgart, Institut für Literaturwissenschaft, neuere englische Literatur, course: Literary Studies, Late Imperial to Postcolonial Literature, Language: English, abstract: Considering the title of rushdie's short story cycle East West, one question quickly evolves in the recipient's mind: does the comma in the title stand for a separator keeping apart two cultural blocks, namely an eastern and a western world, or can it also be considered as a linking bridge? However, when reading rushdie's colourful stories, it becomes clear that he even goes far beyond this bridge notion. The author doesn't only try to link or reconcile the two parts but, as a migrant between the two worlds, ironically plays with the traditional images of orient and occident by applying a huge variety of genre styles, structures and techniques. He finally deconstructs the traditional notions of the two entities. In doing so, he undermines the reader's conventional assumptions about the east and west and makes clear that in recent times, reality cannot be pressed into or described by such simple schemes any longer. When rushdie writes that literature is of all the arts the one best suited to challenging absolutes of all kinds, this is exactly what he does in East West: nothing is sacred any longer, and thus most of the stories can be considered as attempts to ironically challenge and deconstruct sanctities and weak sides of eastern and western culture. By this critique, he makes clear that within the global village these two parts of the world are closely interrelated and cannot be considered as opposing entities thus rushdie goes beyond the common debates about whether there is a divide of the world into east and west or not however as the short stories in east west fulfil all more or less this deconstructive design on the one side and represent on the o
