a landmark volume for defining the terrain of environmental philosophy rethinking nature brings the voices of leading continental philosophers into discussion about what is emerging as one of our most pressing and timely concerns the environmental crisis facing our planet the essays featured in this volume embrace environmental philosophy in its broadest sense and include topics such as environmental ethics environmental aesthetics ontology theology gender and the environment and the role of science and technology in forming knowledge about our world here philosophy goes out into the field and comes back with rich insights and new approaches to environmental problems in living in the landscape arnold berleant explores new ways of thinking about how we live and might live in the landscapes that enfold us through the concepts of aesthetic engagement and environmental continuity he proposes a new paradigm that offers a holistic approach to the meaning of place and places of meaning in our lives although environmental aesthetics is linked in the popular mind to dramatic vistas and monumental landscapes the grand canyon for example berleant is much more concerned with the commonplace settings of everyday life he argues that our active appreciation of or aesthetic engagement with the prosaic landscapes of home work local travel and recreation plays a vital role in our discovery of hidden continuities as well as pleasure and meaning in the places we inhabit berleant begins with a general introduction to environmental aesthetics identifying the kinds of experience meanings and values it involves and describing its historical sources and the issues with which it is concerned in the rest of the book he spotlights new directions in the field as they relate to education community creativity and the sacred and provides an insightful analysis of negative environmental aesthetics throughout he is both thoughtful and entertaining as evidenced in his extended critique of the pop post modern environment of disney world berleant addresses issues commonly associated with the environmental movement e g preservation pollution control and quality of life but his study draws from a wide range of disciplines and for that reason should also appeal to scholars and students interested in art and aesthetics landscape architecture and planning urban and environmental design and cultural geography as well as environmental studies first book length ecocritical study of cold war american literaturecompelling analyses of the function and representation of nature in a wide range of cold war fiction and poetry by authors including paul bowles j d salinger jack kerouac allen ginsberg and mary mccarthy reveals the prevalence of portrayals of nature as an infinite interdependent system in american literature written between 1945 and 1971 daw astutely highlights the cold war s often overlooked role in environmental history and argues that rachel carson s silent spring 1962 can be considered as part of a trend of increasingly ecological depictions of nature in literature written after 1945 by exploring the most recent developments in the field of ecocriticism the book is embedded within current ecocritical debates concerning the anthropocene and anthropogenic climate change key featurescontains five case studies of six cold war writers paul bowles peggy pond church j d salinger jack kerouac allen ginsberg and mary mccarthyoffers an in depth exploration of the influences behind each writer s presentation of natureshows the cold war to be a time of seismic change in the human's relationship to the environment and demonstrates the degree to which this inflects cold war literature engages with the most recent developments in the field of ecocriticism which drive the study's analytical methodology and embed the book within current ecocritical debates drawing on early modern french thought to free nature and aesthetics from metaphysical humanism what good is aesthetics in a time of ecological crisis toward a premodern posthumanism anarchic ontologies of earthly life in early modern france shows that philosophical aesthetics contains unheeded potentialities for challenging the ontological subjection of nature to the human subject drawing on deconstructive ecological and biopolitical thought chad córdova uncovers in aesthetics something irreducible to humanist metaphysics an account of how beings emerge and are interrelated responsive and even response able without reason or why this anarchic and atelic ontology recovered from kant becomes the guiding thread for a new premodern trajectory of posthumanism charting a path from aristotle to heidegger to today's plant thinking with new readings of montaigne pascal diderot rousseau and others along the way this capacious study reveals the untimely relevance of pre 1800 practices of writing science and art enacting a multitemporal mode of reading córdova offers a defense and illustration of the importance of returning to early modern texts as a way to rethink nature art ethics and politics in a time when these concepts are in flux and more contentious than ever environmental aesthetics crosses several commonly recognized divides between analytic and continental philosophy eastern and western traditions universalizing and historicizing approaches and theoretical and practical concerns this volume sets out to show how these perspectives can be brought into conversation with one another the first part surveys the development of the field and discusses some important future directions the second part explains how widening the scope of environmental aesthetics demands a continual rethinking of the relationship between aesthetics and other fields how does environmental aesthetics relate to ethics does aesthetic appreciation of the environment entail an attitude of respect what is the relationship between the theory and practice the third part is devoted to the relationship between the aesthetics of nature and the aesthetics of art can art help save the earth the final part illustrates the emergence of practical applications from theoretical studies by focusing on concrete case studies
